PROPOSED PLAN ZONING HULBURD GROVE

LEGEND ---- Zone Boundary Roads --- National Forest Boundary

SAN DIEGO COUNTY PLANNING DEPARTMENT

A public hearing on a proposed regular zoning plan for the Hul-burd Grove area will be held by the County Planning Commission at 2:30 p.m. on Friday, January 8, 1965, in Room 310 Civic Center, 1600 Pacific Highway, San Diego.

The proposed zoning plan com-prises all of Sections 12 and 13, Township 15 South, Range 3 East and fractional Sections 7 and 18, Township 15 South, Range 4 East lying westerly of Rancho Cuya-maca, an area of two and one quarter square miles, and is the same area as that which presently is interim zoned. The interim zoning will expire on April 10, 1965, and the area will be left

As indicated by the accompanying map, the proposed zoning plan is almost the same as the interim zoning pattern. R-1 zoning is proposed for those areas which have developed residentially or have an evident potential for this type of development. A-1(4) and A-1(8) zones are proposed for the Sweetwater River flood plain and for the outlying relatively undeveloped territory. The R-1 Zone permits one sin-gle-family dwelling on a minimum building site of 10,000 square feet, crops of all kinds and a family supply of poultry and animals. A-1(4) Zone permits one single-family dwelling on a minimum building site of four acres and A-1(8) requires a minimum building site of eight acres. Both A-1(4) and A-1(8) permit crops of all kinds, 25 poultry and/ or small animals plus a limited number of cattle, sheep, goats and swine. For example, on parcels over four acres in size, slightly more than one head of cattle or one sheep may be kept per acre.

The 8th annual Schuetzenfest was held at the Tom Nichols' home last Sunday. Here participants the med up to take part in the invitational affair. Reception To Be Jamul Youth Held Sunday

On Sunday, January 10 from 2 On Sunday, January 10 from 2, p. m. to 4 p. m., a reception will be held to honor Rev. William P. Bray, new pastor for the First Baptist Church of the Willows, 3520 Highway 80, Alpine.

Rev. Bray was formerly assistant pastor at the First Baptist Church of El Cajon. He and Mrs. Bray and their son will make their home in Alpine.

The public is cordially invited

The public is cordially invited to attend and share in the pleasure of meeting this welcome addition to the Alpine community.

Public horse stables may be allowed on issuance of a special use permit. Horses for personal use may be kept in any zone.

Also to be considered at the hearing on January 8, 1965, are proposed building setback lines along Oak Grove Drive, Boulder Creek Road and Viejas Boulevard to protect future road rights of way. Following its hearing, the Planning Commission may recommend a zoning plan to the Board of Supervisors. The Board then will hold a public hearing on the zoning plan recommended to it by the Commission before taking final action to adopt the proposed zoning plan.

MILK GOAT GROUP TO MEET SUNDAY

A regular monthly meeting of the Southern California Milk Goat Association will be held Sunday, Jan. 10, at the El Ca-jon Valley High School in the Agricultural Building on Mollison street in El Cajon.

Dies In Crash

The tragic death of James W. Dedrick, 17, son of Dr. Warren J. Dedrick, shocked his many friends in this area.

The youth was killed when the truck in which he was riding went off the road and overturned.

James was the son of an El Cajon veterinarian and was a senior in high school.

An apparent ride before dinner ended in the tragedy as the boy apparently lost control of the truck and died after having crawled free of the wreckage.

Boney Plans Conference

Henry A. Boney, sworn in as County Supervisor last Monday, has promised to visit Alpine at an early date in order to view the needs of the community.

Boney, who defeated Second district incumbent, David W. Bird by 169 votes, will meet with civic leaders at a date soon to be decided.

Bird has requested a recount of the ballots, but as yet, no action has been taken on his request.

Needs of the community which will be discussed, include the consideration of a resident sheriff

Local Group To Sing

"The Alpinettes," local musi-cal group originated and directed by Lenore Oakleigh Lusk, will present an original program at the Lemon Grove Woman's Club on this Friday, Jan. 8 at 1 p.m.

By way of introduction, Lenore Lusk will read "The Message of Music" after which Jerry Lou Webb, soprano soloist, and Judy Ellis, alto soloist, will sing a novelty number, "I Wonder Whe's Kissipa Lips New " Who's Kissing Him Now.

The program will feature Jo Robinson, who will perform authentic Hawaiian dances while Jerry and Judy sing "To You, Sweetheart, Aloha" an Hawai-ian interpretation of "Someday, Somewhere," composed by Mrs.

The unique piano accompaniment by Lenore Lusk, who makes the arrangements and directs the staging of each number, greatly enhances the program. These talented Alpine people have come to be much in demand since their origination three years ago and glean much pleasure from their efforts.

Editorial

The Alpine Echo and Sun is happy to present Mrs. Bridgie Allen who has written our guest editorial for this week.

Mrs. Allen is president of the board of the Alpine Youth Center and well qualified to speak for the Youth Center.

A couple of weeks ago, the Teen groups of the Youth Center were asked to help in a project concerning the building. A number volunteered to assist in the project. However, on the appointed day, not one showed up. What is wrong with our youth? It isn't often that they are asked to do something. I had hoped they would show their appreciation by help-ing. We need constructive and not destructive assistance from them.

The Youth Center and other facilities in the community are for their enjoyment and they should take pride in them and help keep them ship shape. How about it Teens? Turn over a new leaf for the New Year and make the Youth Center a pride to the com-

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. — It was a stormy winter night in the Mother Lode Country. The year was 1864 and Angels Camp was covered with snow almost as deep as it lay on the nearby Bear Mountain range. The man named Sam came riding down into town from Hanselman's Hill and shuddered as his horse slowly fought its way through the snow drifts by Angels

"Never seen it rage like this before, " Sam mumbled as he tried to pull the collar of his coat up higher to protect his face from the slashing sleet that hit his face like so many tiny razors' edges. "But then," he thought, "perhaps it's better this way than it was in '55 when the whole town was gutted by fire." He did not see many people around as he rode down Main Street - it was a night to stay inside. Before Angels Hotel, Sam stopped his mount, slid down and shook the snow off his clothes

Built originally in 1851 as a canvas structure, the hotel had finally been torn down by its owner, C. G. Lake who had decided the time had come for Angels Camp to have a more solidly constructed hotel. Eventually, he had added a second story.

Inside, the large room was well heated by a large-size iron stove. Many a time, dances had been held at the hotel. This, of course presented some problems in the mining camp because of the scarcity of women, but the miners had solved this by putting some patches on their jeans which simply meant that they represented the womenfolk as they were led in the dances, whether they be mazurkas, quadrilles, or polkas, by other, equally bearded gold-seekers.

But that night, the musicians were quiet. Quickly, Sam's eyes took in the many town notables assembled around the card tables. Among them was Dr. William K. Kelly who never sent out statements to his patients but who regularly advertised in the weekly newspaper when he was about to run out of cash. This gave his patients a perfect excuse for sending him some of the money they owed him. Old Alex, the town crier, was there too, in his blue jeans and flannel shirt, and of course there was Ross Coon, well dressed as always, wearing a vel-vet vest which he had bought on his last trip to San Francisco. Ross was playing chess with Bill Finnegan.

Sam lit his corn cob pipe and sat down to watch the chess game from afar, but Coon called him over. "Got a good one for you, Sam," Coon said. "Ever heard of Jim Smiley of San Andreas? Had a frog called Dan'l Webster that could outjump any other frog. Had trained him well for quite some time, Jim had."

"C'me on, Ross," Jim Anderson interrupted, "Sam has heard the Sam shook his head. "Perhaps I have and then perhaps I haven't, " he said puffing on his Missouri meerschaum. "What happened, Ross?"

"Well, there was that fellow from New York, man named Pete Stag, and he bet Smiley that well, anyway, he said to Smiley, "Smiley, I ain't got a frog, but if I had one, I bet he'd beat the livin' tar out of yours.'

"And did he get one that could beat Smiley's jumper?" Sam

"Well, that fellow Stag was a smart one. He just ran outside to the town pump and picked himself the first jumper he could lay his hands on.

"Course he won. 'Cause you see, Sam, before the contest started, old Stag had managed to fill Dan'l Webster full of shot, and the frog couldn't even get off the ground." Coon broke into an uproarious laughter in which he was joined by the others. Meanwhile Sam was heard to mutter that this was a rather absurd story.

"Come on, Jim," he said to Jim Gillis, "let's go and play a game of billiards." History has not recorded whether he won or lost that game, but it is a fact that for the rest of the evening, Sam kept remembering the words Pete Stag was quoted by Ross Coon as having challenged Jim Smiley with — "If I had a frog, I'd bet you." In fact, he remembered these words not only that night. but for words not only that night, but for a solid week. One night, in his bunk bed in the cabin on Jackass Hill, he pulled out a sheaf of paper and, with his pencil, jotted paper and, with his pencil, jotted down the first page. He called it "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," and under it, he wrote the name of the author — Mark Twain. For a couple of years earlier, Samuel Langhorne Clemens had decided that he should have a pen name for his should have a pen name for his writings and that "Mark Twain," a river term referring to a depth of two fathoms, would do as well as any other.

Thus was born the first of Mark
Twain's stories which achieved national prominence, and to this day, Angels Camp is proud of it. There is not only a statue of Mark Twain in town, but one of the frog as well, and moreover, the International Frog Olympics are held there in May of each year to remember Ed Smiley, Pete Stag, as well as the man who made a great story out of a miner's yarn.

WATCH IT WHEN YOU PICK A CHIC RETIREMENT SPOT

You are planning to move away when you betire. Maybe this year, maybe next. You've spotted away in about a year. But they year, maybe next. You've spotted the place you want. Your friends say it sounds very glamorous.

You may have chosen one of the four retirement spots now from the city. considered quite glamorous by people who live in cities:

A rocky creek in Colorado; A hideaway in the Southern mountains;

An inland waterway in South-ern Florida;

A mountainside in Arizona. If you plan to move to one of these spots, or to any other similar place, you may find it better to change your mind now instead of a year after you move.

A lot cheaper, too.

Out of one of the above glamor

spots last week rumbled a moving van carrying the household pos-sessions of Mr. and Mrs. R. Y. Brown. Behind the van, in a convertible, came the disenchanted Browns.

"Why didn't somebody warn us about this?" Mr. Brown demanded later that afternoon as the van unloaded his furniture at a house on an ordinary street, in an ordinary town, about 10 miles from his glamor home.

So here is a warning, based

Most city people, in choosing a place for retirement, will usually choose a place that looks glamorous to the city where they now live. To natives in the locality where they're going, to spot may look like sucker bait, waiting to be unloaded on the next newcomer who comes in . . . and may well be impractical for everyday living. But the city people don't look into these aspects too closely -they want a spot that looks good to their friends in the city.

don't believe they are breaking ties by moving. They want to live in a spot that has a good image

The Browns bought a secluded, pretty house, on 15 acres of land. There were trees, and some water. It fairly well fit the story-book picture the people back home had of a retirement haven. "But what in Heaven's name do you do on such a place?" Mr. Brown asked. "Everybody around has moved into nearby cities to get jobs. The only people you see are the poverty fringe that is still scratching a living from the land. We'd go for three days not seeing a soul except for maybe a couple of poor fellows you can't even carry on a conversation with . . ."

The Browns had made the town 10 miles away the center of their interests. They joined civic groups and clube there, did their banking and shopping there. And made friends. "But were they coming 10 miles to see us? Most of them won't go two blocks to visit anybody. That's the way our society has become."

It is the Brown's firm opinion, as it is the conviction of others largely on the experience of the who have tried it, that a couple who moves in retirement should pick a general area they like, and then pick a spot in that area that has a good image to the natives. Not to the friends in the old home city. The natives not only know what is best, but it is the natives in the end that you're going to live with and be calling your friends.

CREST

BY CHRIS MARLOWE

Mr. and Mrs. George Behrens recently presented two flags to the St. Louise de Marillac Catholic Church in this community. These flags, a Papal flag and an American flag were given in memory of a son, Dale Cummins, who served as the first alter boy in this church. He also was bap-tized in and buried from this church.

The Good News Club, sponsored by the Community Church has resumed its meetings on each Wednesday at 2:45 p.m. in the recreation hall of the church. These meetings are for all children on the Crest, from the first grade through sixth grade. Songs, games, stories, etc., are the order of the afternoon. Ladies of the church are on hand to conduct and guide this group. Come on, all of you youngsters, tell Mom about it and join this most worthwhile club at the Community Church on Wednesday for an afternoon of fun.

The Crest Civic group holds their meetings on the first Monday evening at the Crest School. Ideas to promote a better community are most welcome and each and every one of you residents is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

Whew! the holidays are over, and we can all look forward to a bright New Year of property and income taxes, as well as paying on all the debts incurred during this past season — oh well!

Sorry about not being in the last two issues, but the Christmas issue carried no columns and the holiday mails made my last week's column too late for publication so I'll catch up this week.

The community Christmas party three weeks ago this Friday was a most pleasant gathering of friends and neighbors. John Amundson on the bull fiddle and Dave Barnum on the accordian did an excellent job of providing the ac-companiment to the group singing of Christmas carols which was led by Rory Wallin. A "thank you" to Frank and Jane Meanea, Homer and Laura Haughey, John and Agnes Amundson, and Rory Wallin for the well-done decorations. The Alpine Lively Oaks held its first meeting of the new year at the Youth Center. The usual games and visiting preceded a sack lunch and meeting. Twenty nine were present. The hostesses for January were named. They are Jeanette Hinkle and Doris Shores.

A pot luck luncheon was announced for Monday, Jan. 11. Each is to bring table service. E. R. Andrix of the Senior Activities Inc., San Diego, will give a book review. Mr. Langford of the Senior Citizens of La Mesa will install the following new officers:

Jeanette Smart, president: Myrtle Hoffelder, vice president: Nola Brabazon, second vice president; Eve Cappock, treasurer; Edna Barber, building fund treasurer; Gladys Pinkerton, secretary; Jeanette Hinkle, recording secretary.

Mrs. Hinkle and Mr. Fred Rohr were named as the two representatives of the club to meet monthly with the officers of the Youth Center.

An enthusiastic welcome was given President Jeanette Smart on her return from New York and Indiana. She reported extreme cold in both places.

The meeting was adjourned for a session of singing with Mrs. Olive at the piano.

ACACIA CLUB TO MEET

The next meeting of the Alpine Acacia club will be held at Fuller Hall, Jan. 8 at 6:30 p.m.

There will be a pot luck with Mrs. Orivel Brown and Mrs. Edwin Dally the hostesses for the evening. Members are requested to bring their own service.

Robert Cassidy, program chairman, has a surprise planned for the evening.

Long-Time Alpine Resident Dies

Word was received that Sunday night, Mrs. Bella Darnell of the Willows, passed away.

Mrs. Darnell had been a resident of the Alpine area for 42 years, having lived here since 1923. She had been active in the Women's Club, having been one of their presidents in past years.

Mrs. Darnell lived at the Darnell Cottages and was 83 years old at the time of her death.

She leaves her son, Balfour Darnell, and also her daughter, Isabelle Pellegrin.

Services were held today in La Mesa at 10:00 a.m. and interment was in Greenwood Memorial Park.

DESCANSO

By ELVA REHDORF

Well, now the holidays are fading into the mist of half forgotten recollections I'll take pen in hand and try to catch up on what's been happening around Descanso.

Mrs. Ruby Anderson spent a pleasant two weeks in Washington returning Sandy, her granddaughter to her parents who recently moved up there. While we know the Andersons are missing their little gal the parents were undoubtedly happy to have her home again and to see Mrs. Anderson.

Miss Patty Richardson was home for the holidays. She was accompanied by her roommate Carol Hale of Little York, Illinois. The two girls attend Iowa Wesleyan College and this was Pat's first visit home since enrollment. The girls spent much of their time meeting Pat's many friends and answering their many questions about college life. They left Dec. 31st to return to school after a very happy and busy visit.

The M.Y.F. had their annual New Year's Eve party following the 7:30 Watchnight Services at Chapel of the Hills. Refreshments were served and a pinata broken. Later the young people ushered in the new year with devotions and prayer.

COMMUNITY INVITED TO POT-LUCK DINNER

There will be a community potluck dinner sponsored by the Alpine PTA at which time they will host the Senior Citizens Club. This dinner will be held on Jan. 12 at 6 p. m. in the school auditorium.

The main dish, bread and coffee will be provided. Interested persons are asked to bring a salad or dessert. A regular meeting follows the dinner.

January being Missionary Month will be observed by a series of four meetings starting Jan. 10th and ending the 31st. The first meeting will be addressed by Mrs. Naomi Prince of Jacumba who will speak on "Our Missions to the Spanish Speaking Peoples in this Area."

Mrs. Bernice Lawrence recently moved to San Diego to take up residence in her own "little grandmother apartment" at the home of her daughter Mrs. Joseph Atkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Reynolds have been on an extended vacation due to some unusual circumstances.
On the day of their departure Mr. Reynolds injured himself slightly so they did not delay but went on with their plans to visit Los Alamos. However, once there, the injury became infected making it necessary for them to stay longer. We sincerely hope they are enjoying their enforced stay and that Al will soon be well enough to make their return home possible.

We wish to express our deepest sympathy to Lou Parma over the recent loss of his wife.

Valley Ranch's annual Christmas party was held at its Lodge a week ago last Saturday night. Among those attending were former neigh-bors we haven't had the pleasure of visiting in some time. Gene and Frances White of Las Vegas; Win and Cec Sellers and their son and daughter-in-law, Pat and Susan Briggs; and Connie Crowley and her son, Mike, of Spring Valley. "Glamour on a Budget, " our cooking school theme for January, should be very appealing about this time of year when Christmas bills have stretched your budget to the extreme. Our first program will be next Tuesday, January 12, at 10:00 a.m. and we will present another completely different program at 10:00 a.m., Tue sday, January 26. They will be held in the lovely Home Living Center of San Diego Gas & Electric Company's Eastern Office at 104 North Johnson Street in El Cajon. Join us, won't you? There will be door prizes and admission is free.

At our first program, we will "Take a Pound of Hamburger" and show you that it can be as delicious as it is economical. We'll prepare several dishes, including, Savory Skillet Burger, Double Quick Meat Loaf and Hungry Boy Casserole.

Our second program is entitled "Thrifty, Satisfying and Tasty" and our recipes are just that! They will include a Hearty Soup — a sure husband pleaser — Barbecued Short Ribs, Beef Burgundy and Apricot Skillet Cake. You are sure to please your guests with Chinese Lamb Riblets — a delicious hors de oeurve that's easy to prepare and easy on your household budget.

I'll be looking forward to sharing my thrifty but tasty budget meal information with you at the two scheduled January meetings.

Contributions Provide Research

Medical research received a $120,000 shot in the arm in California this year, thanks to Christmas Seals.

Local contributions helped support a statewide program which provided research grants for 10 leading scientific investigators and special fellowships for 26 medical students, according to Paul Clay, Alpine area chairman of the 58th Christmas Seal Campaign.

Under research grants: A Southern California researcher is probing the secrets of surfactant, a mysterious substance contained in an invisible film of lung fluid one molecule thick, without which life probably cannot continue, and which sometimes is lacking in premature in-

A UCLA scientist is engaged in studies supporting the decadeslong search for a universal tuberculosis vaccine.

Physicians at the Palo Alto Medical Research Foundation are seeking a new treatment using pure oxygen for those whose lungs have been crippled by emphysema.

A surgeon is developing a technique of using animal lungs to tide newborn infants and victims of actue lung infections over periods of breathing difficulty.

A San Francisco pathologist is investigating the role of a littleknown body chemical called seronary edema, the leakage of blood fluid into the lung air spaces which often accompanies emphysema and pneumonia.

An investigator at UCLA is hoping to find out why a puzzling fungis is parasitic only in man, causing a lung ailment called histoplasmosis.

Medical education fellowships enabled 26 promising medical stu-dents to spend the summer engaged in scientific investigations at research labs at UCLA, Loma Linda University, University of California, Stanford University and the University of Southern California, according to Clay.

The fellows were able to discuss their progress with noted medical researchers from throughout the state at meetings held in Los Angeles and San Francisco in November.

A special, post-doctoral fellowship for teaching and research went to a faculty member at California College of Medicine, Los Angeles.

Three scientifically-inclined high school students received scholarships for work on actual medical research projects at USC School of Medicine, under the direction of Oscar Balchum, M.D.

Local Christmas Seal contributions also helped support faculty positions for the coordination of chest medicine teaching at UC Medical School, San Francisco, California College of Medicine and Loma Linda University Medical School, Clay said. Each of California's 52 county

TB associations contributes a percentage of their yearly Christmas Seal returns to a fund administered by the TB and Health Association of California. From this fund, a volunteer committee of scientific investigators awards the research grants and medical education fellowships.

Without Christmas Seals much vital research on TB and other RD could not be carried on. We hope that our present campaign will enable us to continue, and hopefully, to increase our efforts in research and medical education, " Clay said.

Horses! Horses! BY MARGARET LOWTHIAN

January always seems to be the month of meetings, and the horse people are no exception.

On Friday this week, January 8, the new Equestrian Trails group which has formed in the Jamul area will meet at the Jamul Com-munity Hall and will receive their charter from the State Equestrian Trails. This will be the second meeting for the new group, and they already qualify for a charter, having over the minimum number of members required. As of last weekend they had 35 charter members signed up, and will ac-cept additional charter members at this next meeting.

The meeting will begin with a potluck dinner at 6:30. Everyone is requested to bring something for the dinner, and also their own eating utensils.

The business meeting will get under way at about 80'clock. In addition to the presentation of the charter, the election of officers will be held. Anyone interested in this group is welcome to attend the meeting.

On Saturday, January 9th, a number of people from this area will attend the meeting of the Calizona Appaloosa Horse Club at Carbon Canyon near Brea. This group will elect four new Directors, and will begin making plans for the coming year.

Next week the annual convention of the American Horse Shows Association will be held in New York City on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. My present plans are to attend this meeting, although I do not relish visiting New York in the middle of winter.

On Saturday, January 16th, many San Diego County horsemen will attend the annual Awards Dinner given by the San Diego Professional Trainers Association at the Ocean House in San Diego. This is a big event of the year, and Alpine will be represented by Melva and Ron Riley who will receive the High-Point trophy for Stock horses for Roco Paul Day, for the second consecutive year. Willow Glen Farm will again receive both the High-Point and Reserve High-Point trophies with their Appaloosas. This will be the third consecutive year that the Willow Glen Farm Appaloosas have won both trophies.

At the beginning of a new year, all horse people are busy either getting their horses ready for a new show season, or awaiting foals, or deciding on the best stallion to breed to their mares. Show activities are relatively quiet, but a lot of the behind-the-scenes work is being done in preparation for what may well be the busiest show season ever. A Happy and Prosperous New Year to all of you, and may all your foals be fillies, and all your ribbons be Blue.

Exotic Pineapple Dessert New For Fall

Beautiful canned pineapple chunks, exotically accented with rum and ginger, are used as a very special topping for angel cake slices in this elegant new dessert. Be generous with the pineapple so that it covers every bit of the cake, then top with sweet or sour cream - as much as you like. It's an excellent choice for a fall dinner dessert.

Keep a supply of canned pineapple chunks, tidbits, slices and crushed on hand for last minute desserts. Many pineapple admirers say that the simple combination of ice cream with canned crushed pineapple makes the best of all possible sundaes.

PINEAPPLE TROPICAL DELIGHT

- pineapple chunks
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1/4 cup slivered preserved
- 1 (1-pound 14-ounce) can 1/4 cup dark Jamaica rum 1 cup whipping cream or
 - dairy sour cream

Angel food or chiffon cake

To drained pineapple add brown sugar, ginger and rum. Cover and let stand several hours or overnight in refrigerator. Whip sweet cream until thick enough to mound. For each serving put wedge of cake on dessert plate. Top with generous scoop of pineapple mixture. Spoon on as much whipped cream or sour cream as you like. Makes 4 or 5 servings.

*Candied ginger may be used but the preserved type with a little of the syrup included gives better flavor.

OUR REPLY: You are much too young to be concerned about being in love. At this stage of life, you have more important things to be concerned with. You must devote time and energy to your schoolwork. You just can't say that it isn't important because you plan to be a housewife and not a business tycoon. You need an education to get by in this world—and you need a good education to be a good parent. You are approaching the age when dating will become a part of your activities. Yet, if you are wise, you will see that it is only a part of your activities and does not occupy your mind and your attention at all other times. Your parents, of course, will have something to say about how often you date and the boys that you date. Just remember that their primary interest is your welfare.
