School Announces Budget For 1959-60

A tentative budget of $274,797 for the fiscal year of 1959-60 has been set by the Alpine Union School District Governing Board. This is an increase of $35,355 over last year's budget but will not increase the operational tax rate of $1.51 which has been levied during the last three years and which was extended for an additional three years by the voters in January.

The additional revenue will accrue primarily from a larger beginning balance than existed a year ago, more Federal aid and more State aid.

The greatest increase in expenditures will be in the category of instruction. At least two additional teachers will be required because of increased enrollment; all teachers who have not already reached the maximum on the salary schedule will receive their regular annual increments; and teacher salary increases are under consideration. Additional pupils' desks will have to be purchased since we were short even last year, and extra instructional supplies and equipment will be needed.

All budget entries are subject to adjustment as necessary after the assessed valuation of the district has been announced by the county officials.

The tentative budget has been filed with the County Superintendent of Schools. After it has been checked and returned to the district the local Board will re-submit it on or before July 20 for publication. The regular annual budget hearing has been set for August 3.

Former Alpine Artist Presents Art Showing

Jack Boyd, formerly of Alpine, will present a one-man showing of his original art work starting July 14 at the William James Art Gallery, 1222 Prospect, La Jolla.

The show will include silver work, sculpture, oil paintings, and wall plaques. Jack is employed at the Viejas Jewelry Company of La Jolla which also formerly operated in Alpine.

California Speaks

Significant Statements By Interesting Californians

DR. JOHN W. GARDNER, pres. Carnegie Corporation, at Stanford commencement — "Knowledge is re-creating the world; change is the most certain thing in an uncertain future; and education is the price of survival."

MARTIN CHARGE, Meridian, on being 95—"You've just got to learn to take it easy, and things will be all right."

GERALD HUNTER, Williams rail worker—"People have always tried to keep up with the Joneses, and spend money for things they can't afford and are in debt the rest of their lives."

Present Charter To Alpine Scouts

Last evening Dr. Charles R. Schroeder, managing director of the famous San Diego Zoo, was the speaker at a charter presentation of the Alpine Boy Scout Troop.

The presentation was part of the regular meeting of the Alpine Kiwanis Club which sponsors the Boy Scout Troop.

Last week the Kiwanis Club entertained the Explorer Scout Troop at their regular meeting on Thursday.

New Guest Lodge Opened In Alpine

The Alpine Guest Lodge which is located approximately two miles east of Alpine on the north side of Highway 80 has been opened by Florence Martineau and Margaret Daniel.

The Lodge has ten accommodations for room and board guests. The owners plan to develop the 4-acre site into a resort area.

Hatch Chevrolet Company Expands

Hatch Chevrolet Company in El Cajon is expanding, and will have the largest frontage area of any auto dealer in this section when their planned construction is completed.

They are adding new buildings to the east of the present ones which will house a service department and sales office.

Truck Accident On Alpine Grade

Irwin Russell of Alpine escaped with relatively minor facial lacerations in a sensational truck accident early Thursday morning.

The accident occurred as Russell was driving a truck loaded with cement bags down the Alpine grade. A mechanical failure, allegedly a broken axle, caused the vehicle to become out of control. A small brush fire developed at the scene of the crash but was quickly controlled by the Alpine Volunteer Fire Department.

Russell jumped from the runaway truck at the last moment. He was taken to Sharp Hospital for treatment. About two weeks ago a similar type of accident involving a truck loaded with grain resulted in a fatality on Dead Man's Curve seven miles east of Alpine.

ALPINE CHATTER

Verlie Boyd was in Pacific Beach last weekend visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Boyd.

Verlie and her father are planning a trip to Texas and New Mexico starting July 15. They will attend a family reunion in Brownwood, Texas, and visit her brother in Carlsbad, New Mexico.

The Alpine Ramblers are planning a beach party Saturday night, July 11. Each teenager must have a membership card, or buy one before leaving the Youth Center. Any member bringing a guest will be charged 50c for the guest. The group will meet at the Youth Center at 5 p.m., and return at 11 p.m. All teenagers must have permission slips in order to go.

Vic Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Cooper celebrated his third birthday Thursday. Guests included Duane and Teresa Romaine; Linda, Beverly and Connie Nichols; Clinton, Mike, Danny and Toby Whitt; Shelly and Susan Whitt; Mike and Linda Garcia; and Steve Bratt.

Any children interested in signing up for the second session at the Youth Center may do so on Friday, July 10, between the hours of 9:30

3 Alpine Residents Killed In Accident

Three residents of Alpine were reported burned to death in a car-truck accident near Casa Grande, Arizona, early Thursday morning.

The reported victims are Mrs. Marlene V. Smith, age 26, their 19-month-old son, Thomas, and a 6-month old daughter, Laurie. Her husband, Kenneth J. Smith, was reported to be badly injured.

Water Meeting Held At Harbison Canyon

A meeting was conducted Wednesday evening in Harbison Canyon by the proposed East County Water District Committee. The group met to discuss plans for the inclusion of Harbison Canyon residents in the East County District.

Several persons who indicated that they were members of the Alpine Heights Municipal Water District raised questions about withdrawal from the Alpine Heights District to join the Harbison Canyon group.

A follow-up meeting was to be held Thursday night to discuss new tentative boundaries of the proposed East County District.

Beryl Phelps, spokesman for the group, stated that he still hoped to include 30,000 acres to the south of the initial East County District boundaries.

Several groups in this 30,000-acre area have indicated their preference and taken steps to annex to the Otay Water District as announced last week in The Echo.

Brush Fires Threaten Back Country

Two brush fires have threatened the back country recently, but have been checked by firefighters and no homes have been damaged.

A fire on both sides of Lyons-Lawson Valley road four miles east of Jamul on State Highway 94 has blackened many acres.

Four acres were burned on Holly Rd. near Flinn Springs, Highway 80. The U. S. Forest Service sent 43 men with 14 trucks and a bulldozer to combat this fire which lasted for 45 minutes.

The cause of the two fires has not been determined.

Tom Hill Retires; Now On Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Hill of South Grade Road left last Wednesday for a vacation trip. They will drive up Sonora Pass to Livingston, California, where they will visit their daughter, Zelma Rae (Tootie). After a week's stay, both families will then visit points of interest in northern California.

Mr. Hill retired from his electrical business July 1. Upon returning from his trip, he plans to divide his forty acres, keeping eight acres for himself. Mr. Hill will drill a well on the acreage with his own rig, build roads and plant trees.

CAMPO NEWS

By Fay Farris

The Mountain Whirlers Tacky Dance held Saturday night in Campo, was a big success, and there were many interesting costumes. Prizes in keeping with the Tacky idea were won by June Rinks and Mr. Childers for the best costume. Between dances Sharon Thomas did two specialty numbers. She is a talented dancer. Jan Hendrix, Betty Rinks, Ina May Wordley and Roberta Robertson also did two songs in pantomime. Everyone had a gay time, and it was nice to see some of the members who have not attended the club dance regularly.

Donnie Smith has been home on leave. He is in the Navy and has been abroad. He is the son of Don and Tess Smith of Morena Village. Mrs. Smith's father has also been visiting her from Wisconsin.

Dutch and Mrs. Palmer have been on vacation. He delivers mail in the Campo area.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Hasenmaier are spending the summer in the High Sierras as usual. His sister and husband spent the Fourth of July weekend in their mountain home in Morena Village. Their name is Robertson, and own the unusual and elaborate Rock House in the village. They live in Los Angeles

Editorial

Coleridge's Ancient Mariner had it bad, all right, with water, water everywhere, nor any a drop to drink. But think of the plight of California's legislators, who know there's plenty of H2O to quaff the thirst, but how to get it everywhere?

While the North and South battle over the distribution problem, and while millions upon millions of dollars are being destined for water projects, it is comforting to know that intensive research is bringing us closer to the day when we'll be able to tap directly the original source of all water, the oceans.

A number of private projects are in advanced stages in California, and under the sponsorship of a California Congressman, Representative Craig Hosmer, the United States Interior Department has embarked upon a $10 million, 10 year research program aimed at practical conversion of salt water for agricultural, industrial and even personal use. At least one of five different processes being tested is scheduled for this state, Hosmer reports.

It would be foolish, of course, to count too much on salt water conversion. But with the United States upping its water needs at a rate of 597 billion gallons daily, certainly no possibility should be overlooked. It may well speed the day when our legislative Mariners can relax in the assurance that there IS, indeed, water, water everywhere.

The Greater Danger

A great many Americans have been sincerely disturbed over the fate of Marshall Island natives who were exposed to radioactive fallout in 1954. A United Nations report now indicates that these people ARE worse off for their experience.

Their trouble, however, has only a tangential connection with nuclear fission. The natives have recovered fully from any radiation exposure, the UN says. Instead, they are suffering from what appears to be an even more insidious malaise—paternalistic fallout. In other words, having had all their needs cared for by outsiders for five years, they aren't about to go back to supporting themselves—willingly, at least.

This won't impress the welfare staters one little bit, of course, but it is strong evidence of what cradle-to-grave pampering can do to the moral marrow of the human being.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

RESORT REBOUND—Resorts report advance reservations indicate a record year, in sharp contrast to the dismal season of recession-year 1958.

A number of "name" hotels in Maine report they've never had so many advance request for bookings. Some California spots report reservations running as much as 40 per cent ahead of last year. Colorado's 400 dude ranches indicate summer business will top the 1957 record.

Opening of the Seaway is luring tourists to Great Lakes resorts. Alaska and Hawaii are getting a bigger play than ever. Touring services catering to motorists report more trips are being planned to cover three weeks. Airlines summer package tour sales are running far ahead of last year.

With it all, rates remain near 1958 levels.

A machine that measures how different grasses resist heavy wear may prove a boon to backyard gardeners and golf course managers. Devised by a University of California agricultural engineer, Prof. Russell L. Perry, the machine consists of four corrugated wooden feet that simulate severe scuffing, two rollers covered with golf shoe spikes, and the equivalent of a golf cart wheel. Preliminary tests indicate that tall fescue shows strongest wear resistance among common home lawn varieties and seaside bent grass is the least durable.

The fragile butterfly shows all the hardy perseverance of stronger creatures when migration time comes each fall and spring. At least one familiar American butterfly (the black-and-orange monarch) spends the winter thousands of miles from home on islands in the Atlantic or Pacific and the European painted lady ventures regularly to Africa and beyond. Smithsonian Institution researchers, who have been observing the wanderings of butterflies and moths, say there are 250-odd species of the migrant insects and no one has been able to discover exactly why or where they travel. Their determination to get there is apparent, though, since they've been seen flying through railroad tunnels, up and over trees, and even straight through homes if the windows were open and unsecured.

Games Party At St. Philomena

There will be a games party at St. Philomena Parish Hall Saturday, July 11, at 8 p.m. Everyone is welcome. There will be cash prizes, coffee and doughnuts.

It is estimated that some 14,700,000 people use boats for fishing in the United States, more than for any other purpose. About 1,400,000 use boats for duck hunting.

POET'S CORNER

The roses red upon my neighbor's vine
Are owned by him, but they are also mine;
His was the cost, and his the labor, too,
But mine as well as his the joy, their loveliness to view.

They bloom for me, and are for me as fair
As for the man who gives them all his care.
Thus I am rich, because a good man grew
A rose-clad vine for all his neighbors' view.

I know from this that others plant for me,
And what they own, my joy may also be;
So why be selfish, when so much that's fine
Is grown for you, upon your neighbor's vine?

—Abraham Gruber

Summer Rise In Retail Sales Is Seen By Advertising Experts

More than three quarters of the retailers included in a nationwide survey expect their summer business to top last year, according to the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association. Seventy-eight percent of the retailers are looking for increases, 20 percent expect no change, and 2 percent anticipate a drop in summer business.

In releasing results of the survey, Edward H. Burgeson, Retail Vice-President of the Bureau, said: "Of particular significance is the number of retailers who plan to use Outdoor Living the theme of the newspaper industry's third seasonal 'Total Selling' promotion to spearhead their own stores' promotions. Ninety-one percent plan to use Outdoor Living either as the dominant theme or as a supplementary theme in their advertising this summer."

The survey was conducted by the Bureau through its member daily newspapers in the United States and Canada.

Retailers surveyed represented 19 store types, including department, apparel, furniture and home furnishings stores.

This retailer optimism for summer extends to profits, too—67 percent of the merchants surveyed expect to show an increase in profits, 28 percent no change and 5 percent a drop in profits.

The average increase expected for both sales and profits is 5 percent for the summer months.

To help gain this increased business, one-quarter of the retailers are planning to increase their advertising budgets an average of 5 percent, while 65 percent will maintain their summer ad budgets at last year's level. Ten percent expect to decrease their summer advertising budget.

Newspapers continue to be the retailers' number one advertising medium—72 percent of the stores surveyed plan to invest 80 percent or more of their summer advertising budget in newspapers. Fifty-seven percent of merchants in the Bureau study will allocate at least nine-tenths of their ad budget to newspapers. One fifth of the retailers are planning to advertise exclusively in newspapers this summer.

10 Calif. Streams Rate In Top 100 Best Trout Waters

Top fishermen throughout the United States have come up with a list of the 100 best trout fishing streams in the country. Ten of these are in California, one of them—the Truckee River—also running into Nevada.

Other California rivers rated among the top 100 are the Klamath (which includes Oregon), Eel, Russian, Trinity, Tuolumne, American, Pit, Rubicon and Feather.

The list was compiled by Wynn Davis, well-known angler and outdoor writer, for the magazine Out-door Life.

The breakdown as to types of trout:

- Klamath—summer, winter steelhead; rainbow, brown.
- Eel—big steelhead.
- Russian—steelhead.
- Trinity—steelhead.
- Tuolumne — excellent rainbow, good brown, fair brook.
- American—fair steelhead.
- Pit—excellent rainbow, some brown.
- Rubicon—rainbow, brown, brook.
- Feather—excellent rainbow, fair brown, some brook.
- Truckee—one of the best brown trout rivers in this region, excellent rainbow, good cutthroat.

What's The Best Time To Wield Pruning Shears?

Prune fruit trees any time when there are no leaves on the tree, but in cold regions wait until end of winter when all danger of frost is past. Especially postpone pruning when buds may be killed by severe temperatures, such as for peaches. Then, if the frost has destroyed many buds, prune very lightly. But never wait until new growth has started.

The first growth on fruit trees is formed primarily from the food storage reserve in the plant and is extremely rich in nitrogen. When the pruning is done prior to the start of growth, most of these food reserves are diverted to the buds that remain.

Prune all fruit trees lightly up to bearing age. Heavy pruning retards the beginning of fruit bearing. Prune primarily by thinning out branches instead of reducing the height of the trees.

For nearly all fruit trees, over-pruning is generally more serious than underpruning. In general, apple, pear, sweet cherry, plum and prune trees require less pruning than peach and sour cherry trees.

Time To Prune

Ornamental Trees and Shrubs

Ornamental trees and shrubs should be pruned after they are through blooming and before new flower buds form. Therefore:

Prune spring and early summer-flowering plants in spring or early summer after blooming and while still in active growth.

Prune late summer and autumn flowering plants any time after flowering before growth starts in the spring.

Postpone pruning late-bloomers, unless they are very hardy until spring.

Remove only weak and crossing branches and wood that will no longer flower freely. Shrubs that produce several shoots from the ground generally require the removal of the older ones from time to time.

Never prune without knowing why. There are three reasons for pruning ornamental woody plants. One is for promoting vigor and health by removing dead or dying wood and broken or split limbs. Another is to control form by cutting out crossing and interfering branches and establishing a pleasing form, usually in line with the natural form, except for hedges. A third one is for modification of flowering. Pruning is usually done to promote more flowering, but sometimes to have less flowers but of bigger size or greater perfection.

Do as much pruning as possible with a knife while branches are small. Cut twigs with a diagonal stroke beginning opposite the lower edge of the bud and terminating slightly above. If the cut is properly made, it will heal promptly. If too much wood is left above the bud, the cut surface cannot heal and the twig beyond the bud will die. If the cut is too close to the bud, it may die because of the drying of the adjacent area.

Evergreens

Evergreens do not require periodic pruning as much as deciduous plants. However, when it becomes necessary to modify or thicken the growth of an evergreen

California ocean waters are remaining warmer than usual again this year (inshore temperatures in Southern California are 4.5 degrees above average). This has produced good to excellent fishing for bonito and barracuda.

It should be done just prior or during the early part of the growing season, but not during the dormant season.

The Versatile Omelet!

Everyone recognizes the omelet as a breakfast dish; but since so many people have been traveling everywhere in the world, many of us now accept an omelet as a wonderful item almost anywhere in the menu! This one, lightly sweetened with delicious flaked coconut, is versatile, indeed. It will make a welcome Sunday brunch main dish served plain—or with a luscious lemon or other fruit sauce, it will be delightful as a dessert for a soup or salad luncheon or supper. Pass extra coconut for topping and garnish, if desired.

Fluffy Coconut Omelet

- 1 tablespoon flour
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 4 egg whites
- 4 egg yolks
- 1 can (about 1 1/2 cups) Angel Flake Coconut Butter

Combine flour and salt; gradually stir in milk. Place over medium heat and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Add 1 tablespoon butter. Remove from heat and allow to cool slightly.

Meanwhile, beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Gradually add milk mixture to egg yolks, blending well. Stir in coconut. Fold mixture into the stiffly beaten egg whites.

Melt small amount of butter in a 10-inch skillet. Add the egg mixture and cook over low heat 3 minutes. Then bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 15 minutes. Omelet is sufficiently cooked when a knife inserted in center comes out clean. Turn out on hot platter. If desired, serve with hot sauce—lemon is a favorite. Makes 6 to 8 servings.
