Alpine Heights Annexation Sought

NUMEROUS RESIDENTS REQUEST MORE INCLUSION INFORMATION

Surprising interest is being manifested in the newly formed Alpine Heights Municipal Water District. Alex Adams, district director, and E. L. Freeland, engineer, had been asked by several persons to explain the details of individual annexation procedure at an informal gathering Wednesday evening. Twenty persons, however, appeared, almost all being residents living near the present boundaries of the district.

Mr. Freeland explained technicalities of the Alpine water district function. He emphasized that the district is not actively soliciting additional parcels and that annexation to the district is on an absolutely voluntary basis. He pointed out that the Alpine Heights District is still in a formative period and that the board of directors has had only one official meeting.

Residents indicating interest in annexation to the Alpine district represent approximately 200 acres.

George Capitanos and Miss O'Brien were married last Friday in the Greek Orthodox Church in San Diego, and several local residents attended the impressive ceremony. He is principal of the Mountain Empire High School.

The Mountain Whirlers held its regular dance at the Pine Valley Club House Saturday, August 1, as this was the weekend of the Pine Valley Horse Show, and as this club sponsored the Square Dance there. Everyone had a fine time, and there were many spectators. Ballroom dancing could not be held on the tennis court as planned due to the rain Saturday afternoon.

The Middletons have sold their house in Lake Morena to the McVeys, but they promise to buy another home here as soon as they will have time to enjoy it. They state they like it here very much.

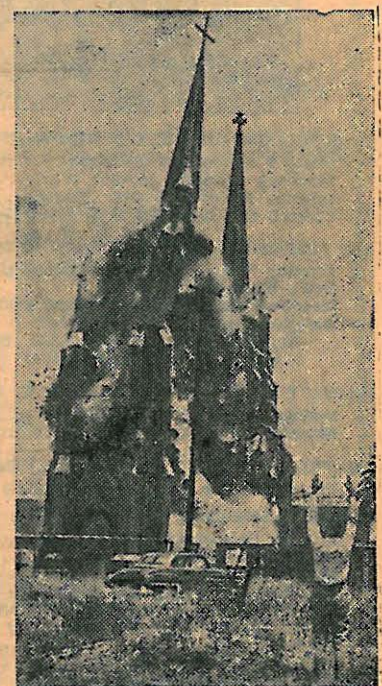

The Imperial Valley Square Dance group have spent the last two weekends camping in Mt. La. Continued on Page 4

EAST COUNTY DISTRICT REVEALS COST ESTIMATE

A cost breakdown for the extensive water system proposed by the proponents of the East County Municipal Water District was revealed at a water meeting attended by about fifteen persons in the Harbison Canyon Community Hall last Monday. The cost of the system is now estimated to be $4,000,000.

The committee is seeking to include about 27,000 acres south of the original boundaries of the proposed East County District. Mr. Cranston, legal adviser for the group, reported that the earliest possible date that the proposed district could hold an election would be about January 15, 1960. If the election passes, it would take at least one year to complete plans for the project, and an additional year for construction, it was stated.

Mr. Beryl Phelps, engineer, reported that he had consulted with several construction authorities in computing the cost estimates.

It was noted that the water system was considerably modified from the plan originally proposed. The main supply line from Slaughter House Canyon to the pumping station is now diagramed as a 30-inch line. The estimated cost of this one main section is $918,000. The district also now proposes to provide an extension Continued on Page 4

Youth Center Holds Board Meeting

The Alpine Youth Center welcomed Mr. Gamble as their custodian at their regular meeting last Monday night. They also gave permission for the Alpine Allemanders to use the tennis court for their all-night square dance August 22.

A budget meeting was called Wednesday night at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. Clarence Gillson. This meeting is to prepare a budget for 1960 to present to the United Fund.

Pastor On Vacation

Dr. Roger Larson, pastor of the Alpine Community Church, left Monday afternoon for a vacation in Washington and Oregon. He plans to return sometime after Labor Day.

During his absence the following visiting ministers will conduct the church services:

August 9—Rev. Donald Holsopple of the San Diego Council of Churches.

August 16—Rev. Everett LeCompte, Presbyterian minister.

August 23—The Gideons.

August 30—Rev. Charles Spisak of the Good Will Industries.

Sept. 6—Rev. Clarence Loomis, California Western University.

Active Month For Real Estate Company

July was a very active month for the Alpine Branch of La Mesa Realty Company, Bill Brown reports.

Among the sales was the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Chutor on Alpine Terrace Road. The buyers, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson of Escondido plan to build several more homes on this property. Mr. and Mrs. Chutor plan to do some extensive travelling.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Grissom of Willows Road have sold their home and store building to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Crane of San Diego. The Cranes are now in business in San Diego and they plan to move their second hand store to Alpine. Mr. Grissom plans to teach art in Anderson, located in Northern California, where he and his wife have purchased a ranch.

Mr. and Mrs. Florian B. Brzezinski of Lakeside have purchased the acreage on Highway 80, north of the Willows from Mr. Dale Ernst of Las Vegas and plan to build several home in the near future. The 100 acres east of Tavern Road and south of Southgrade Road owned by Auren Pierce of El Cajon has been purchased by Mr. Drew Smith and Paul Seramur, investors from San Diego who plan to develop it for home sites in the future.

Champions Hold Outdoor Meetings

During the summer months the Alpine Champions 4-H Club will hold recreational meetings at Shadyrock Ranch for members and their families. These get-togethers will be held the first and third Tuesdays of the month any time from 5 p.m. on.

At the July 21 meeting 31 members and their families enjoyed a wiener roast, swimming, and playing games. A potluck dinner was held August 4.

The next recreational meeting will be August 18.

Editorial Echoes

If you've happened to wonder what it is that is boosting the economy into thunderous activity the answer is quite simple.

Consumers started 1959, says the Federal Reserve Board, with more assets on hand and with larger incomes than ever before. To put it another way, the American people reduced their automobile installment debt in 1958 and increased their bank deposits and other savings more than in any year since 1945.

So, the decks were cleared for a lot of new buying. And that's just what the consumers have been doing. Automobile production is out of the doldrums. New housing is going strong and going with it is substantially greater purchases of home appliances. Heavy industry is way up. Bigger sales call for more activity in transportation and other fields.

It is estimated that 40 per cent of the American people have liquid assets of $500 or more. Also, about 40 per cent of the American families reported increased incomes last year, as did 54 per cent of the farmers and 44 per cent of self-employed business men.

In the first six months of this year wages and salary totals have increased at an annual rate of $12½ billion.

But people generally are doing something beside spending. They are saving, too. They stashed away no less than $5½ billion in savings institutions during the first three months of 1959. And they're probably doing even better now. The habit of thrift is guaranteeing greater economic security not only for the savers, but to an appreciable extent, for the country as a whole.

From all indications the boom will continue to zoom.

It has been said that people save less money in good times than they do in bad. Supposedly, the reason is that with higher income and greater confidence in the future it is easier to spend money.

However, the American people seem to be just about as thrifty now as they were a year ago when the economy was pretty well down in the dumps. The Securities and Exchange Commission reported a few days ago that individual savings for the first quarter of this year reached $5½ billion. That's the same as in the first quarter of 1958, but about $2 billion more than in the fourth quarter of last year.

One thing appears quite certain: more people feel the urge to save, and DO save, than was the case a generation or two ago. Maybe it's because the modern living standard is better and there are more funds available for building up a reserve. Maybe it was the lesson of the depression. Even though many adults today were too young in the early 1930's to remember the hardships of that time, they've heard enough about them to have an effect.

Whatever the reason, thrift is becoming a permanent part of the American character. That may seem doubtful to some in view of the large increase in installment debt. But, actually, many people prefer to borrow at the bank even when they have savings funds on deposit. In that way they keep their savings intact while buying the more expensive items on a time basis.

It is to be hoped that the thrift urge will continue to develop in these United States. For in thrift there is economic strength and security. And, who knows?—the example of individual thrift may eventually be copied in Washington.

SCIENCE

(We are grateful to the International Oceanographic Foundation for permission to publish the following material).

Question: I am studying methods of converting salt water to fresh. Can you give me some information on this subject? Mr. B.

Answer: Sea water can be converted to fresh water by simple distillation, that is by boiling the sea water and then cooling the steam to condense it to fresh water. This process is satisfactory for producing small quantities of fresh water but is impractical on a large scale, except for a few special purposes. Many ocean-going vessels, for example, use distillation apparatus to produce fresh water from the sea because the cost of distillation is less than that of providing adequate fresh water storage space.

Information on various methods under study is contained in a booklet entitled Demineralization of Saline Waters which may be obtained by writing to the Office of Saline Water, Department of the Interior, Washington 25, D. C.

Question: I have frequently heard that whales, when stranded on the beach, die from the ill effects of their own weight. Can you explain this?

Answer: Whales do reach as much as 200,000 pounds in weight. In the water however they are buoyed up since any body immersed in water loses weight by an amount equal to the weight of the water it displaces. Under normal conditions immersed in the sea the effective weight of the whale is comparatively small and no greater muscular power is needed to prevent the body from being crushed by its own weight. Upon land the body weight is many times greater so that the muscles are not powerful enough to prevent the flesh and lungs from collapsing under the greatly increased load. The lungs cannot function under these conditions and the whale dies of asphyxiation, possibly combined with reduced blood circulation.

Ass'n Ends Season

The Junior Baseball Association is nearing the close of their baseball program for this year. The playoff will end next week, and the equipment will go into mothballs until next year.

The Association enjoyed a very successful season with over 100 boys taking part. More boys played this year than ever before in Alpine. They are looking forward to next year when they will be playing on their new ball field. The Association would like to thank everyone who has helped to make this season a success.

With more parent participation, which is much needed, the program will continue to grow. It is hoped that even more will come out next year and support the boys and their teams.

Trophies for this season will be awarded at the picnic August 29.

Lloyd and Janet Collins are the parents of a baby girl, Dana, born Tuesday evening in Grossmont Hospital. They have two other children, Mathew and Duthie.

TEEN TALK

By Janie

It seems as though Carla Wal-lenborn isn't the only one who is having fun riding her burro this summer for Kathy, Charlotte and Mary Hittle have just received a darling little burro named "Jerry." Jerry is a gift from their father who has promised that if the little burro receives good care, the girls can have a much-wanted horse.

Star Light Opera at Balboa Park. Sharon enjoyed the musical very much, and is now playing the album, "Carousel," on her record player!

I have just been informed via the postal service that Chappie Guidette is having a wonderful vacation in Rhode Island. He enjoyed visiting our smallest state last summer so has gone again this year.

Paul Spires and his family will leave Saturday for a 4 or 5-day trip to Arizona's famed Grand Canyon. Paul and his father plan to go down into the Canyon. Don't get lost, Paul.

If any of you teens are going, or have been on vacation, let me know so I can include it in my "T.T." column as other teenagers like to read about what you've been doing.

Many teenagers have taken up new hobbies this summer, but perhaps the newest one is Cheryl Hoffman's. Cheryl raises poodles, or rather she plans to raise them. She now has two, "Tammy" and "George", and she hopes to increase her collection in the near future!
