The New Alpine Echo

We sincerely hope to earn the full support of Alpine by giving this community accurate reporting, as complete coverage of the news as is possible, and as extensive a circulation as we can achieve.

Because we feel that a small town weekly is something very different from a Metropolitan daily we feel it is especially important that we consider the feelings of Alpine citizens in anything that we publish.

We will not intentionally print anything that will hurt anyone even if it is news. We will do all we can to promote tolerance, understanding, and good will among the people of this area.

We believe in the dignity and personal worth of every individual and we are proudly loyal to the American tradition of free enterprise tempered by Christian Stewardship.

We want to be part of the Alpine team and we pledge ourselves to do all those things to promote this community that we can find possible.

To this end we will try without bias to present both sides of any issue where there is an honest difference of opinion. Where there is a misunderstanding we will try to present facts and where there is a conflict of interest we will promote compromise.

We ask for your goodwill and cooperation and plea for your support in working to make a fine community even better.

Jr. Baseball News

Work is continuing at a feverish pace on the new ball field, as the Alpine Junior Baseball Association is hoping to complete it by the start of the new season, which is just around the corner.

This past weekend the roof was put on the concession stand and the pole was readied for power to be run up to the field from the pump house. A 100 amp service will be run to the ball field.

The following men helped out this past weekend. Tom Nicholas and Gene Wilcox installed the power pole. Gordon Gilroy and John Gilroy put the roof on the concession stand with assistance from Gene Wilcox. We gave Larry Wilcox the weekend off, so he should be raring to go next week end.

Still to be completed before the start of the new season are the announcer's booth, bleachers, septic tank, roof on the dugouts and the stairway to the field. We hope to complete these items by the start of the season but unless we start getting more help on weekends we will never make it. You can't expect three or four men to do it all, but they're trying their best. So let's get behind your boys and see to it that he plays on a field second to none in the county. With more help this can be accomplished.

The Alpine Junior Baseball Association has a cottage style house trailer for sale, which was donated to the Association by Mary Findell. It is parked by the Youth Center if anyone would care to look at it before making an offer to buy it. It will be sold to the person making the best offer on or before the first of March. Proceeds from the sale of this trailer are to be used by the Association to complete the ball diamond.

The Baseball Association would like to know of anyone in this area, who has a 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  or 2-inch pipe laying idle, that you would like to donate. It will be used in the construction of the bleachers. If you can help, please contact Harry Jennings, HI 5-3188.

On the twenty-second of January at the Alpine Youth Center, starting at 8 a games party will be held to help raise additional money for the association. A big turn out is hoped for. If you can't come out to help us on weekends on the construction of the ball diamond, maybe you can help us out financially out and have a good time in the bargain.

Playing cards were the first paper money used in North America. World Book Encyclopedia says that in 1685 the French colonial governor of Canada failed to receive money from France to pay his troops. When the soldiers threatened to desert, the governor seized all playing cards and declared that they were to be honored as currency when bearing his signature.

DEVELOP YOUR SPIRITUAL RESOURCES

The other day, I asked a group of teenagers which of two situations would be worse, to be financially bankrupt or to be spiritually bankrupt. These young people had been given a great deal of spiritual training. They had the wisdom to answer that to be spiritually bankrupt would be the worse of the two situations. This is of course contrary to much popular belief both among young people and adults. These youngsters made the remark knowing full well that not one of them would want to be without financial resources.

If a man has developed his spiritual resources, these can never be taken from him. Should he lose all that he has of economic value, he would soon be able to recoup his losses because of his spiritual resources. But if he had no spiritual assets and suffered the loss of all that he possessed, he would have indeed come to the end of life. Jesus, the Master of Life, said, "Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

When we expect wealth alone to bring us comfort and security, we are preparing ourselves for frustration and disillusionment. Many a man of means knows that his possessions bring greater demands for his attention and concern. Fear of loss is a constant reminder that this kind of security is a tenuous thing. Once a rich man discovered too late the folly of putting his trust in riches. We find the story of this man in another of Jesus' parables. This man stored all of his wealth in his barns. One night he died. Then God said to him, "Fool! this night your soul is required of you; and the things you have prepared, whose will they be?" He thought that his material resources would prevent any catastrophe from occurring.

Vain is the man who seeks only a long life and has not a care for a good life: who takes heed only for the present and thinks not of things to come: who has love of only that which the eye can see, and has no vision for that which will bring joy everlasting. Therefore, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust consumes and where thieves do not break in and steal; for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

MEASURING

It took centuries for men to agree on a standard length for the inch. But outside of the English-speaking countries, most people would call it a waste of time.

The inch started out as the width of a man's thumb. That was a sound idea as long as one man was doing the measuring. But when two men began arguing over a boundary, they needed a thumb they both respected. The chief might provide the standard measurement for a village, but there was trouble again when another village was involved.

In the 1100s, a Scottish king named David compromised: he decreed that an inch was the average of the thumbs of three men—a small man, a man of medium stature, and a large man—"mesurrit at the rut of the nayll."

England wouldn't buy that, and a few years later Richard I made the first law requiring actual standards for measurement. These were iron bars, guarded by sheriffs. In case of a dispute, the item in question could be measured against the standard. The iron didn't wear well, however, and copies made from the original were crude.

According to World Book Encyclopedia, Edward II tried his hand at standardizing the inch in the 1300s. He declared that one inch should be equal to three barley-corns taken from the center of the ear and placed end to end.

The French, bursting with equality during their Revolution, thought that was typical of royal whimsy and let the scientists take over. The result was the metric system, based on the decimal system, which the Egyptians had been using for centuries.

France adopted the system and many nations followed suit.

In 1875, 17 nations including the U. S. set up the International Bureau of Weights and Measures near Paris. Standards of the meter and the kilogram, made of an alloy of platinum and iridium, were placed in the Bureau, and duplicates were sent to the governments of the founding nations.

The U. S. was reluctant to give up the yard and the pound, measures which it had taken from England. But in 1893 it adopted the metric system as the standard for legally defining these measures.

Except for the U. S., Great Britain and most of the British Commonwealth nations, most countries have adopted the metric system. It is used in science—in measuring radio waves and electric current—and in all U. S. government departments dealing in tariff operations, in coining money, and in weighing foreign mail.

S. D. County Fair

DEL MAR—The Danish system, or group judging, of fat animals exhibited in the Junior Department will again prevail at the annual Southern California Exposition and San Diego County Fair to be held in Del Mar June 24 through July 4, 1960.

This was determined as a result of a survey conducted recently among former Four-H Club and Future Farmers of America exhibitors. Two hundred and eighty-eight cards were mailed asking for preference on two types of judging—the Danish system or group judging or the American system of placement judging.

One hundred and forty-seven of the replies favored the Danish system; 18 the American system, one had no preference and 19 favored a modified Danish system. There were 185 replies received out of the 288.

Four-H and F.F.A. activities throughout the county will be stressed at the 1960 edition of the exposition, fair officials said.

The carat used in weighing diamonds was originally based upon the weight of the seed of the carob, a tree of the Mediterranean region, according to World Book Encyclopedia.
