HAZEL HOHANSHELT RECEPTION DRAWS LARGE CROWD

Thirty-four years is a long time to work at one job in one place and keep the bright spark with which one started. But that is the record of Mrs. Forrest (Hazel) Hohanshelt who retires this month after 34 years as Alpine school teacher.

Mrs. Hohanshelt was honored Sunday, June 3rd at a tea and reception from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Alpine Union School auditorium where she was presented with a money-house, gift from her many friends which included many of her ex-pupils. About 200 persons attended the event, a number coming from out of town. Hosts and hostesses were the PTA groups of the Alpine and Harbison schools.

Mrs. Hohanshelt did not begin her teaching career in Alpine although she lived here at the time she started teaching. Her first school was the John Muir elementary in what was then La Mesa, now San Diego. Her first principal, who came to the tea, was Miss Mary Carver, well-known educator of San Diego, for whom a school in that city has been named. Hazel taught for one year in the La Mesa school, then she married Forrest and had to resign since that school did not hire married teachers.

She then applied for and got the job as teacher of the Alpine grade school. Chairman of the board at the time was Mr. Frank Bourne, now of El Cajon, who was among Sundays tea guests. "He was game," Hazel said, "He took a chance on me."

"I knew it wasn't a risk," Mr. Bourne smiled, "I've been right, too."

In 1928 when Hazel took over

Water System Nearing Completion

The work of installing the water transmission lines, pumping stations and reservoirs for bringing water to the Alpine area is nearing completion according to Mr. Charles Price, general manager of the Rio San Diego Municipal Water District. Water is now being pumped from Lakeside through the transmission lines to the various reservoirs in the water system. As the water is pumped through the transmission lines, the lines are tested for pressure and Mr. Price states that the testing is proceeding in a satisfactory manner.

The transmission lines have been filled to the reservoir at the Hilltop Reservoir which will serve Suncrest, and also the transmission lines which will serve the Alpine area have been filled to Chocolate Divide, and it is anticipated that the transmission lines to the reservoir on West Victoria Drive will be filled by the end of this week if no difficulties are encountered.

After the transmission lines have been filled, the reservoirs are then filled and allowed to stand for seven days to test for leakage. This procedure must be completed before the system can be chlorinated and put in a condition for use for serving domestic water through the service lines to the property owners.

The work of installing the water meters on the distribution lines in the Alpine area was commenced last Monday, and will continue until all of the meters that have

INTIMATE GLIMPSES

By BEA LA FORCE

The man who wrote "The pen is mightier than the sword" would find over-whelming proof of the aptness of his statement today when, as never before, propagandists use words as tools to achieve effects not to communicate truth.

The most appalling aspect of this wordsmanship is the docility with which most people accept it, allowing themselves and their children to be brainwashed by the word mongers.

Like the zebra, which has a day and a night bark, the unscrupulous use language differently to suit different audiences. Communists are the worst offenders with their energetic courting of the minds of Americans, and the rest of the world. The war of words is more subtle and less immediately destructive than nuclear bombs but, just like the winds and the seas which can hollow out the hardest rock, it has the power of eroding society.

The unscrupulous like powerful weapons especially when they are cheap. Our advertisers and politicians are avid in their attacks on our minds and emotions. The language of government bureaucracy is fraught with peril for the uninitiated and would be comic if it were not so insulting to the intelligence. The American honesty of expression has been perverted until one needs an interpreter to understand it.

Alpine Chatter

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hansen have recently returned from a six weeks visit in Washington state, where they went principally to see Mr. Hansens sister, Mrs. Irene Hatcher who has been seriously ill. When his sister improved, the Hansens went to the World's Fair in Seattle where they saw all the main sights including a ride in the Space Needle from which Mr. Hansen reports a breath-taking view of Seattle, one of the Nation's most beautiful cities. The 76 acre Fairgrounds was crowded, he said, and it was necessary to stand in line to get in many of the concessions.

Who is Directing Who?

In a press release, Representative Bob Wilson states that he has called on President Kennedy to fire the "economic odd-balls" on his staff of advisors and declare a "cease-fire in his cold war with business" as a first step toward restoring confidence in the economy and preventing future stock market crashes such as that of last week.

He says he makes this statement to the President as Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, and further states that the people of his area place the blame for triggering the stock market collapse squarely on the "rash actions" of the President and his aides in the steel case.

In another press release, Mr. Wilson calls on the editors of local newspapers to furnish the President with copies of their papers and editorially tell the President their feelings and the feelings of their subscribers regarding the President's actions.

We have always had the impression that the President was the Executive Officer of this country and that the Congress was its Board of Directors who determined the country's policies and program, and decided what activities the Executive branch could engage in and provided the funds to cover the cost of their execution.

In other words, we were of the opinion that the President could not employ any "economic odd-balls" or any other kind of odd-ball without definite authorization by the Congress and that if such were not true, it could lead to situations such as have occurred in other countries in the not too distant past.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR—

Letters must have signature and address, be subject to being condensed and will not be returned. The opinions expressed are the opinions of the writers and may not necessarily reflect the opinions of the Alpine Echo.

Dear Editor,

Well, here is a little history of your local and consolidated school. In 1909 we had a school house on the north end of Tavern road. This was adequate to take care of all the children and several times we had to hire teachers with enough children of their own to maintain a school at all. The school at that time was pretty well centrally located. There was no cafeteria or transportation or other frills. The schools taught reading, writing and arithmetic and none of these children grew up to be ingoramuses. I knew them. The taxes were not exhorbitant. If the school needed some repairs or grounds we all helped fix them.

A few years after the State highway was paved, what is now called Arnold Way, the State had too much money throwing around so decided the road was in the wrong place and decided to build a new one to the north and proceeded to tear down half of a mountain to get rid of this money. They sent out a civil engineer to construct this road. He lived at the Willows. The Viejas valley had a school for that part of the district about a mile away. This engineer wanted the people of the two districts to haul his child to school. The only way that could be forced on the taxpayers was to get the two districts consolidated, which he proceeded to do. He was about to retire from the State with a pension. No one pensioned these taxpayers ever. Tom Hill on Tavern road had a good one and one-half ton truck so he built a body on it and used it a short time, that is until your bureaucrat educators condemned it. It was not fancy enough to suit them as a school bus. So the district had to buy a regular bus. They had let someone talk them into something.

When Ogden and Baron Long owned the Viejas valley, the assessed value was about $15,000. I think Ogden sold it for $100,000 including the pure bred cattle and equipment on it. However, the Alpine Viejas district got school taxes from the assessed value of Viejas Valley.

Now at the south end of Chocolate Canyon there was an Indian Reservation. The city of San Diego wanted to put in the El Capitan reservoir there. So had to buy a suitable place to put the Indians, so they bought Viejas Valley from Baron Long. The price was reported to be $125,000, and Long lost the money at that. However, this being U. S. Government property it paid no taxes. The Government supported that school until the consolidation which the Indian service very much desired. The consolidation created a crowded condition in the Alpine school, so the newcomers were hot to vote $10,000 for more schools for Uncle Sam's Indians. I have no quarrel with the Indians, but could not see where the Alpine people should bond themselves for a school for the Indians. I thought that was Uncle Sam's business. I circulated a petition, signed it over 90 percent, sent it to the Commissioner of Indian affairs. It was said he took it to Congress and they voted the money. This did not suit Roosevelt. He vetoed it and a couple of years later came up with the WPA and said if the people would vote $10,000 for material the WPA would furnish the labor, so they voted to pay for a school for wards of the U. S. Government.

As more people came into the district the school was crowded again. So more moderate cost rooms were provided on the same ground. A short time later the bureaucrat educators said they were unsafe and should be condemned. The logical place for a school was just west of the present one at that time. The superintendent of that school made the owner so mad he wouldn't sell at any price so a new site had to be found. Several were considered but civic pride had to have it centrally located where water was not plentiful and very little level land. A prominent lawyer moved into the community and bought a tract of land north of Highway 80 from the Dewitt estate. He got the public all hopped up if they would buy 10 acres on the hillside for $10,000 he would give five acres for the center. Here we go again. Something for nothing. Let's get it right now, it cost very much more to develop water and grade that land than the land cost in the first place. I doubt if this public-minded citizen ever paid $10,000 for the whole shooting match. Then the next thing was how much bonds would be voted. The educational bureaucrats took care of that. Now mind you, we were short of class rooms, but we had to have a big auditorium. They couldn't get public money to build auditoriums so they called it a cafeteria, but put a great big stage at one end. Funds obtained by false pretenses, from the State and government. And we were still short of class rooms after it was built.

The Harbison Canyon people were in El Cajon district. They had half day sessions. El Cajon was expanding so fast they couldn't keep up, so the same superintendent went down there and told them Harbison Canyon people "if you join Alpine, we will stop half day sessions." Now El Cajon had lots of assessed value. Alpine used up all and perhaps more than they had, so Harbison Canyon joined Alpine and the half-day sessions still continued. For a long time they had to assume the Alpine bonds and are still paying on the El Cajon bonds they helped vote in, if they haven't matured by this time.

I suppose the educator bureaucrats got more money by having a larger district, however, Harbison Canyon has paid through the nose ever since. The Canyon deal created another shortage so they had to select a site right next to a chicken ranch and pay more for it than it was worth, also, I am told, more than the highest appraisal. Now where there are animals or fowls there are flies. In fact the school board bought right between two big chicken ranches. So I suppose the zoning thing that is going on is to get rid of these chicken people's livelihood. I, for one, wish these city people that want to turn a beautiful country into a city for a few paltry dollars would stay in the city where they belong, where they have all this stuff. The people that have lived here for years liked it the way it was and did not mind a few inconveniences. There has been a lot of figures quoted about this special tax for school.

Who, but the high priced educators, made these figures? For what gain and whose benefit? Where did these bureaucrat planning commissions come from anyway? I never voted for them. The bureaucrats are springing up faster than the weeds in spring time and Mr. Taxpayer, you are supporting every one of them to tell you how to run your own business.

These taxes eventually will be the down-fall of this mighty nation. Well, they are still trying to ram this $1.86 through after it was turned down three to one. Nothing less will do. I say let your conscience and your pocket book be your guide on election day, but vote and see that your neighbors do also. Just who are this Fact-finding Committee anyway? Ashamed to put their names to it? Lakeside said No. Escondido the same several times. San Juan Capistrano said No and some others. There are limits to all things.

If you like to support officials that get a pension and get elected to a county office for another salary, vote for them. Also State and Federal monies for education is just good politics. Hence, all this ballyhoo. You may get 50c on the dollar back. If you want to paste another mortgage on your home vote for the bonds.

Dear Editor,

We note that W. F. House has again taken to writing letters to the press in an effort to defeat the local (Alpine) school tax election, June 12, to provide much needed revenue for the operation of our school system. While Mr. House poses as an expert, passing judgment on our needs, we doubt if he knows much about the fiscal policies and needs of our school. To the best of our knowledge, he has attended but one local board meeting in his life—and then at the invitation of the board; giving him an opportunity to defend his position. He stated "then" that he had an alleged gripe against the superintendent. It appears that he would deny to all children in our district, unable to fight for their own rights, their inherent right to an adequate education because of a gripe against one individual.

Mr. House does not state all the facts with reference to the salary of the superintendent. He fails to state that the superintendent was hired on a four-year contract with a graduated pay scale averaging $13,500 a year for the entire life of the contract. Not $14,000 or $15,000 as the figures furnished by Mr. House would lead one to believe. The true facts were available had he checked with the local office.

Evidently, some people have little regard for facts. It has been repeatedly stated that the school board is empowered only to ask for the tax rate that will provide the necessary revenue, they are not empowered to give the voter their choice of two or more rates. We suggest that Mr. House call the Registrar of Voters and get this confusion in his mind cleared up.

We do not know, nor can we imagine, what kind of school Mr. House feels would be adequate, but we can only infer from his letter that he feels that a superintendent should not be paid more than a laboring man—which he states is about $5,000 a year. We fail to see why a man or a woman should spend several years of his life, and many thousands of dollars, in preparation for the educational field, if after it all they were only to receive a common laborer's wage. That wage must be based on a 40-hour work week. No school superintendent could run a school by devoting only eight hours a day to his job. Supervisors in many fields are paid more, check any union scale.

We think you offer us false counsel, Mr. House.

Sincerely,
 Facts Finding Committee of "ACTION"

P.S. Mr. Galloway, to the contrary, we believe it is an injustice to our retired citizens to assume that they expect or want education to be curtailed or strangled just because they have retired.

previously been ordered and paid for have been installed.

Due to the terms of the contract under which the main transmission lines are being installed, no service connections and meters can be installed in these lines until the transmission lines have been completed, tested and accepted by the district, Mr. Price states.

This will mean that those property owners fronting on the main transmission lines who have paid for their meter connections, will not have service until these lines have been accepted and their meters installed, which may be a few days later than service will be available to the property owners abutting on the service lines which have already been installed, tested and accepted, and on which the meters are now being installed.

Mr. Price states that the contractors are proceeding as fast as possible to complete all of the work under their contracts, and that there will be no further delays due to weather conditions or in the delivery of materials.

When the meters that have been ordered are all installed and the system placed in operation, the district will employ a maintenance and installation crew for the purpose of installing meters ordered in the future and maintaining the water system.

Pine Valley Views

By JANE ORBOM

June is a time of visiting, of moving, of comings and goings. Eddie and John Straub are back in their home here in the valley, their yard full of peonies, iris and roses. Guy Beynon just couldn't wait until his home was vacated by renters and has taken an apartment at Rita Browns for the time being. Lois Roe all excited about her coming fishing trip. Mr. and Mrs. Guilford Whitney back at their home on Corte Madera after a trip to the Seattle World's Fair. Sally and Mike Belcher stopped by to say hello on their way north. Five new house trailers in the valley ready to start summer vacation trips. Remember when five or six trailers left Pine Valley in a caravan for Yellowstone National Park early in June of each year. These, however, are all going their different ways.

Barbara Mohamed entertained 35 of her classmates from Mercy Hospital School of Nursing last week end at her parents home on Pine Boulevard. These hard working dedicated young ladies (all in their late teens and early twenties) had a wonderful vacation as Barbara was a most generous hostess. She arranged a swimming party at Pair-A-Dice pool, horse back riding, using all the horses at the stables for several hours, a big barbecue under the pines. In talking with these nurses to be, one is impressed with their enthusiasm for their chosen work and their courage. But most of all their desire to be of help to humanity. Certainly no problem young people in this group.

The Nichols home on Pine Boulevard at the corner of Spruce has been a scene of celebration this past week. On April 30th Arthur Nichols retired after 51 years of public service. The first 25 years in the U. S. Navy and 26 years with the U. S. Postal Service. Nick joined the postal service in 1934 and was appointed Superintending Engineer in 1948. He has seen his section grow from 12 employees to 41. He was in charge of clearing the way for the San Diego main postoffice building in 1937. In 1961 he received a Supervisor Accomplishment Certificate, together with a cash award for redesigning special postal equipment. The Nichols built their home "Casa Manzanita" in 1936 and spent as much time as his work allowed here. Now they feel free to be in the valley more often and for longer periods of time. Congratulations Nick.

The remodeling at the Hilltop Lumber Company is for the Guatay Postoffice which will be moved from its present location in the stone building across the highway. Beginning July 2nd the Guatay Postoffice will operate from this new location at the west end of the lumber yard. This will be a more convenient location and certainly much more attractive.

A great big thanks to Louis Perina for his time and effort in securing such outstanding motion pictures as he showed last Saturday evening after the Improvement Club meeting.

Art Krause was a welcome visitor in the valley. He called on old friends and the Starks who purchased his home of many years on Pine Boulevard. Art was reminiscing about the valley when he first settled here in 1898. At that time there was only one house in the valley with a barn and corral around it. Cattle were grazing all of the valley and there were no roads. Only wagon trails, and the creek ran 8-12 inches deep in the summer and in the winter the water was up to the bed of the wagon. More about the "old days."

EXPERIMENT IN GRASSES CONDUCTED HERE

Now the picture you will see with this article shows part of 40 varieties of grass from various parts of the world. Many I have had before, but these are cross-bred or special strains of plants we have had previously.

the education of Alpines children, the school was the old one room variety with a bell to call the pupils in, and a wood heating stove. Hazel taught all grades one through 8.

Mr. Bourne said, "We didn't have many pupils then so we used to have to hire a teacher with several of her own in order to have enough children to hold a school. But by Hazel's time there were just enough so the teacher didn't have to supply any."

Tom Hill Jr., was one of Mrs. Hohenshelt's first 1st grade pupils in the one room school huse. She taught him for several years grade to grade. His son Charles is now one of the 5th grade pupils in her room. "I started and finished with a Hill boy," she smiled.

A number of her estimated 1000 pupils or their families still live in Alpine. Among local names once on her roll call are, all the children of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Ball, the Tom Hill's 2, the Doerrs, the Gordon Wilsons, Rings, Smiths, Judd, Moore, Kidders, Dowdy, and many more. Nicky Reynolds of Kingston Trio fame was one of her pupils.

A feature of the reception enjoyed by all was a chronological display of old photographs and news clippings which Mrs. Hohenshelt prepared. This exhibit covered three of the long tables in the auditorium and held the fascinated interest of all the guests. Former pupils eagerly sought themselves and friends in group school pictures of the earlier years. It is characteristic of Hazel Hohenshelt's cooperative spirit that she thought to give this treat to her friends. It was the best possible entertainment for the party.

With retirement the attractive energetic Alpiner is looking forward to a new phase of living devoting her full time to her new home and various outside interests.

Advisor, as at the itme I was physically unable to do the planting. However it was planted quite late so many of the varieties did not have time and sufficient moisture to mature. But I know some of them will live through the summer months and will show what they will do, if anything. Bea took a picture of 6 rows of a cross-bred Orchard grass created at Davis by Ledyard Stebbins. It is no 414. Now most of this cross-breed survived the dry years just passed and the seed in these rows was all there was in the world to my knowledge. We will be able to get some seed, I hope. Stebbins is the professor of genetics at Davis University, a very honest hard working man, not afraid to soil his hands either.

The object of these field trial plots is to see if it is possible to get something adapted to this climate and after a plot is planted, it takes several years before you are sure that you have something good. It might do well for a couple of years, then just disappear. What we are hunting for is a grass that doesn't have to be irrigated. There are thousands of them. We want something that will survive on the rains alone. Not only the United States, but many dry parts of the world are trying for the same thing. After world war one, we had men in many foreign countries collecting seeds and plants. Some of these were successful, but just as long as we put such high taxes on farm and ranch land, no one can afford to use them. So the farmer plants what will bring in the most money immediately, hence the great over supply of grains which can be harvested with the least labor.

The farmers are so over-run with County and Government bureaucrats for the life of me I can't see why they dont just turn their farms over to the bureaucrats. You think you own something; you don't. All you have is a life lease and you are told what said. "As if there was something wrong with being called a plumber." He found that electricians were called Electrical Engineers; a watchman was a Security Officer and on down a long list of pretentious labels which are a tacit insult to the workman implying a necessity to hide the truth.

This wordmanship extends far into our everyday lives. The public schools are loaded with every word for their staffs except teacher. There are counselors, coordinators, instructors, directors, leaders. Fewer and fewer stores have clerks. There are sales representatives. Dressmakers are now Fashion Stylists; the waitress is now often a Hostess.

At best language is ambiguous and complex terms are almost always misunderstood. The simple terms are best and most durable. That is, if one wishes to be understood. One word is better than three. Plumber is far more straightforward than Sanitary Engineer which can be manipulated out of any meaning and any work at all.

In the words of Noel Coward, "It is discouraging to think how many people are shocked by honesty and how few by deceit."

ning one each. Cindy Ann Byers of the Alpine 4H was the only winner of a first place from this area in the Ornamental Plants Division.

The goats were well represented from Alpine with Ed Schwenck, Charles Jerney and Cindy Ann Byers each taking a blue ribbon with their entries.

The Poultry Division was represented by Roger Jerney of Alpine with his turkeys with which he won a first place blue ribbon.

Larry Dyer of Japatul took two blue ribbons with his beef, and also sold his 932 pound steer to the La Mesa Kiwanis Club at a price of 33 cents per pound. Larry's sisters, Leona and Kathy, took honors with their sheep, Leona's entry being Reserve Champion, and Kathy's winning a blue ribbon.

The Dyer children of Japatul showed great versatility in winning so many blue ribbons in such a large number of the various divisions of the fair.

you can do. Why waste money teaching children agriculture? They will never get enough money to work at it. First they will have to have $40,000 or more for machinery. Second they cant farm on $300 acre to $1000 acre land. Better teach them something else. The average farmer is the poorest paid man per hour in the United States. Besides, we now raise more than we can sell. That is one school course we can well forget about. Farming is soon going to be run by stock companies like any other factory. What do we want to build more dams for to raise more crops, when we can't sell what we now have? Politics, of course, to create more public officials.

in the morning should tune in on Britt Douglas' program on KOGO (before 6:00 a.m.) to catch the Alpine weather report which is called in every morning between 4:45 and 5:15 a.m., by Mrs. Nellie Keller. This volunteer service by Mrs. Keller has resulted in Alpine getting considerable publicity especially for our wonderful weather.

Horse! Horses! Horses!

The Elvin Thomas family, Lakeside, woke the other morning to find a new back filly at the side of their pony mare, Black Velvet. Poppa is G. R.'s Domino, Pony of the Americas. The filly will probably end up the same color as poppa, white with black egg-sized spots. G. R.'s Domino was just sold this week for a figure in four numbers.

Mrs. Pauline Burdick, Lakeside, is the proud new owner of Quannah's Spotted Man, yearling P.O.A. stallion. He was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fite, Spring Valley. Not only loud color, but a well-bred colt. He will stand at the Burdick Ranch.

Sunday is the open horse show put on by Post 395 Boy Scouts of America Mounted Troop to be held at the Tumbleweed Ring, Lakeside.

Dr. Herring, Lakeside, was host to several polo teams over the Memorial holiday. Lots of good fast action was seen at these games.

Willow Glen Farm's R. H. Blue Bonnett won the Appaloosa Pleasure class at the Rancho Sante Fe Show last Sunday, and also placed fifth in a large Open Adult Amateur class. Her stable mate, R. H. Marvel, was third in the Appaloosa class.

Quarantined Beach Improves

A 20-day sampling program has been completed by the State Department of Public Health of all swimming and recreational areas in the ocean and bays along San Diego County's coastline.

The tests found some improvement in the Imperial Beach area. Still unsafe for swimming is the beach between the International Border and the mouth of the Tijuana River Slough.

The beaches on the eastern end of Coronado facing San Diego Bay will remain under the quarantine which has been in effect there since 1955.

Due to construction in the Harbor Island area of San Diego Bay, water samples were unsatisfactory. The area will be rechecked to determine the source of contamination. The San Diego Bay area opposite Rohr Aircraft and the new harbor development and boat ramp of the City of Chula Vista had unsatisfactory tests. This area should not be used for recreation.

The eastern shore of Mission Bay next to Highway 101 also had unsatisfactory tests and is unsafe for recreational use. Additional tests will be made in each of these three recreational areas.

State Trailer Towing Regulations

Motorists who tow trailers should make two basic adjustments in their driving, California Highway Patrol Commissioner Bradford M. Crittenden advised this week.

"Their speeds should be lower, and their following distances greater." His statement came as boat, luggage and camping trailers began to populate California highways in growing numbers—recognition of summer's approach.

"The law limits passenger vehicles (and commercial vehicles under 4000 pounds) which pull any other vehicle to a 50 mph maximum, and it also provides that no vehicle shall follow another more closely than reasonable or prudent. The speed limit is specific, while the following distance requirement allows for judgment. Common sense indicates that following distances must be increased when you are pulling a trailer, to allow for added difficulty in stopping the combination," he said.

Other points emphasized by Commissioner Crittenden:

1. No passenger vehicle may tow more than one other vehicle.
2. Towing a trailer often tilts headlights upward so they glare in the eyes of oncoming drivers. Check aiming after the trailer is hooked up.
3. Because of the 50 mph maximum, motorists towing trailers frequently will find they are moving slower than traffic around them. To comply with law, they should move right (except when passing or preparing to make a left turn) to allow faster traffic to pass on the left.

At press time the unofficial results were not sufficiently complete to determine whether the two Grossmont Junior College District measures and the Grossmont Union High School District measure had been passed or defeated.

INSECT PESTS OF HOUSE PLANTS AND HOW TO CONTROL THEM

Some dozen insect pests attack potted plants kept indoors or patios, the most common being, aphids, spider mites, fungus gnats, red spiders, thrips and ants. An insecticide spray or dip is recommended for the control of these. Exceptions are slugs and snails, which also occasionally invade indoor plants. For these, poison bait is more practical.

Although most insecticides may be sprayed or dusted on, dips are best because they usually give better control, and do not drift about the area when applied. Some plants are more difficult to wet than others. If a preparation, when properly mixed according to the directions on the container, does not spread readily and wet the plant well, add half to one teaspoon of a mild household detergent (not soap) per gallon of spray or dip.

For a dip, put the insecticide mixture in a pail or pan large enough to accommodate the top of the largest plant to be dipped. Then prepare the plant for dipping thus: Pack crumpled newspaper over the soil around the plant and close to the stalk. Or make a cardboard disc to fit around the plant stem. Now when you turn the plant upside down to dip it, be sure to hold the paper firmly against the soil to keep soil in place. Lower the foliage in the insecticide solution and immerse it thoroughly, lower and raise it three or four times until you are sure every bit of it has been treated. Then set it back in place, removing paper.

To remove aphids, mealybugs, and scale insects from broad leaved plants, washing with soapy water may be all that is needed. Use two teaspoons of a mild detergent to a gallon of lukewarm water. Use a soft brush or a cloth and simply wash each leaf on both sides then rinse with clear water.

An easy way to control light infestations of mealy bugs or aphids on a few plants is to wet a cotton swab with rubbing alcohol and wipe the pests off with this.

If ants are your problem, and are attracted by the aphids, mealy bugs and scale insects, then you must spray the boxes, soil ground, walks, and all surrounding surfaces with chlordane to rid yourself of these.
