WILD FLOWERS ARE ON THE WAY

Southern Californians may soon enjoy a fine display of desert wild flowers, with broad expanses of lavender and purple desert verbena and white primroses interspersed with many varieties of yellow and blue blossoms. The beavertail and other varieties of cactus will put forth their brilliant blossoms.

On the coast, the spring wildflowers are beginning to bloom now, and as the weather becomes warmer, more varieties will be blooming over wider portions of the County.

James M. Moon, County Agricultural Commissioner, reminds flower lovers that it is illegal to pick any of these flowers, as well as any kind of native foliage, trees, or shrubs, from either public or private lands. It is not only park land that is subject to ordinances prohibiting the picking or destruction of any native plants. Transplanting any of the plants is also illegal.

Collection is allowed on private property if the collector has written permission of the owner of the land. Also, the County Department of Agriculture may issue collection permits to duly accredited representatives of any public library, museum, school, scientific or other educational institution, or to herbarium and scientific collectors, to take such plants or flowers for educational or scientific purposes. Collectors are reminded that such permits do not authorize the picking of native foliage from any public parks nor from private lands without permission of the owner.

Town and Country News,
 A dastardly deed was perpetrated here in Alpine on Monday, March 13th, when a beautiful dog was shot.

This dog was a prized possession and a much loved pet of a young couple who recently moved to Alpine to make their home. They were so enthused to become a part of our community and be able to enjoy the quiet beauty of our hills and the contentment of country life.

On this particular day, the owners of the dog left her in the fenced yard — as usual. She must have jumped the fence and wandered away. This dog was very gentle and would harm no one. If someone found her on their property and bothering them, they could have easily found her owners by examining the tag on her collar and keeping the dog until the owners could go for her. If she was trespassing on someone's property, that did not warrant shooting her with deliberate intent to destroy her.

She was found on her home grounds in the late afternoon of the day she was shot by a man on the ranch, when he heard her whine.

When he spoke to her she came with him to her home where he let her on the screened porch, as it was raining, and he covered her with a blanket.

Another resident of the ranch telephoned the owners at their place of work. As soon as they could reach home they took their pet to a veterinary hospital. After examination the doctor gave very little hope of saving her life as the bullet had gone through her body in a most vital spot. She had bled profusely. She died that night.

The doctor said she had been shot at close range. Anyone so low as to do an evil thing like this does not belong in our peaceful community where most people love and understand animals and think of a stray as someone's pet, and realize how much suffering is caused, when a pet is killed or injured.

If they do they will apply the golden rule.

Spade . . . flower beds deeply before planting annuals this spring. You'll be surprised at how much difference it makes.

Sandy Soils . . . may be bulked up by adding humus material. Peat Moss is one of the best choices.

Compacted soils . . . should be worked over thoroughly and a commercial conditioner added. This will keep the soil in good condition for a long time.

Newly planted trees . . . and shrubs want extra water during their initial stages of growth.

Container grown roses . . . may be set out any time but be sure not to disturb the roots.

"HAS IT EVER occurred to you," said Robert, looking up from the evening paper, "that we never have company any more? That none of our friends come to visit us? When was the last time we had anybody over for dinner?"

"I HADN'T REALLY thought about it," I moved a little in my comfortable chair in front of the fireplace, inadvertently displacing three dogs who had settled for the evening in my lap. "Now that you mention it, nobody has been here for ages. The last time your mother was here for dinner she seemed uneasy and wanted to go home early — I thought it was because she didn't enjoy all the dogs gathered around the table, watching her eat as though every mouthful was the last bit of food on earth. . . ." I was suddenly struck with an idea. "I don't suppose — do you think it could be the dogs?"

I HAVE BEEN giving the matter a good deal of thought and I am afraid it IS the dogs. We have become social outcasts and pariahs because of our five noisy, untrained, undisciplined, lovable dogs! I remember the last time my daughter Pat came to take me shopping and she refused to come in the house even though it was raining. She stood outside on the porch until I joined her. Could it be because on a previous visit Penny, who adores her, leaped happily upon her, tore both her stockings, scratched her hand and left muddy pawprints on her clean skirt? It is conceivable that five loudly barking dogs frighten off visitors who might come more often if things were quieter around here!

THERE WAS THE evening my cousin Jack and his charming wife Maria came to call, bringing along their two beautiful beagles were forced to retreat to the car where they spent a solitary evening while our little tyrants lolled around on sofas and chairs enjoying the visit. Even Cavanaugh, Robert's right hand man studiously avoids the house when he comes to work and all the dogs love him dearly but they do get over-excited. I was sorry about the large hole Mr. Sam accidentally ripped in his trousers that time.

I HATE TO admit failure in anything but it is obvious that I have made gross errors in raising and training our dogs. Probably the biggest mistake is in having too many of them but that is a problem too late to solve. We will draw the line now and say no more dogs and I have gone to the library and gotten a book on the training of dogs which I hope will improve the situation around here. The book says a good watch dog doesn't bark all the time, only when something unusual happens. The author never met our family. The book also says when a dog barks unnecessarily you should place your hand firmly around his mouth and say "Quiet!" as though you mean business. This is practically impossible, when you have five dogs all barking at once. Not enough hands. However, I have come up with an idea. After reading all these impossible rules and regulations I have decided I will concentrate all the training on this last puppy we have decided to keep (we didn't mean to, but he is SO cute!) and trust that Charlie will be an example to all the others. While training him, we will point out to the rest what we are doing and this may just solve our problem!

TAX REMINDERS

Southern California taxpayers were reminded today by District Director of Internal Revenue Frank S. Schmidt that payment of Federal taxes on gifts is due April 17, the same day income taxes must be paid.

Mr. Schmidt said that taxpayers who made gifts during calendar year 1966, or are planning to make gifts in the future, will find answers to many of their tax questions on these gifts in IRS Publication No. 448, A Guide to Federal Estate and Gift Taxation.

The Guide summarizes important Federal estate and gift tax laws and regulations and also explains both types of tax and the requirements for filing returns and paying these taxes.

Mr. Schmidt indicated that the chapter on estate taxation will be very helpful to taxpayers whose estates may be subject to Federal estate tax and want to make the most beneficial provisions for their heirs.

A Guide to Federal Estate and Gift Taxation, Publication No. 448, may be obtained for 25¢ by writing to the District Director of Internal Revenue or the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

"Tax Guide For Small Business," a 160-page booklet, provides answers to questions about Federal income, excise and employment taxes which businessman may have, Frank S. Schmidt, District Director of Internal Revenue for Southern California said today.

The booklet features a Tax Calendar for 1967 listing dates on which various tax and information returns and payments are due. It includes a check list showing businessmen at a glance what taxes they may be liable for, where detailed information may be located in the "Guide," and what forms are needed to prepare the returns.

Mr. Schmidt said the "Guide" also explains how the Federal tax laws apply to different forms of businesses — sole proprietorships, partnerships and corporations. It covers special problems of manufacturers, retailers, professional men and other types of business operations.

The "Tax Guide For Small Business" booklet may be purchased from most Internal Revenue office or ordered from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402. The price is 50 cents but subject to change.

The Easter Breakfast at Alpine Oaks brought out a near record crowd of guests and residents to enjoy the delicious food prepared by Mildred Sevoik and her committee of willing workers, Edith England, Bill Hadden, Jean England and Ed Bower. Frank Sevoik took ill and had to be relieved of his grill duties.

The March Birthday Tea was well attended. Stella Malgeri was our only honored guest. Rose Faulkner was hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. George Andrews were pleasantly surprised by a three-day visit from their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Andrews of Seattle, Washington.

Houseguests at the Louis Colbergs for the Easter weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Minor O. Smith of Sequim, Washington.

The Easter bunny was quite generous to Iva Gunther and also Martha and Buck Carter who took delivery on brand new cars during Easter week.

A TRIBUTE

By MILDRED WHITAKER
(As read at the Woman's Club Birthday Party)

It was in 1929 that John and Clarice Andrew came to Lakeside to raise avocados. John, a building contractor, had purchased land on Maple Ave. (now Westhill Rd.) and in May 1929, when they moved to their ranch, Clarice was serving the last year of her second two-year term as president of the East San Diego Woman's Assembly.

She joined the Woman's Club of Lakeside in 1931 when Tillie Cox was president. In those days the Board of Directors was elected by the club members and the directors then elected the president from the members of the board.

In 1932 Clarice was elected to the Board of Directors and they appointed her president. She served one year and made up her mind she wasn't president material so she refused to serve the second year. In 1935 however, she was overruled and served again as president for another year.

It was in 1935 that the club's "May Breakfast" was born. Their slogan was that all members of the club should be ladies for one day out of the year and sit at a table and be waited on — just for a change.

In 1946 Clarice again served her club as president. This term was for two years and it was during this term that the War Memorial Committee of Lakeside was formed and Clarice served as Secretary for this committee.

In 1946 with the war over, the club again celebrated its evening Birthday Dinner. During these years the avocado grove had grown and prospered — but only due to the tender, loving care of its owners.

Especially due to Clarice, (big and husky as we know her to be) — (to those not at the party, and those who do not know Clarice, she weighs about 100 pounds) she loved every tree in the grove like a mother. It meant many hours in every week had to be given to the trees but nevertheless Clarice had time, through the years, to be very active in the County Federation and the District, as well as in her own club.

She has held, at one time or another, every office in the club and she has served on probably every committee.

Over the years she has served, at various times, as County Hostess for the County Federation as Credentials Chairman, Amenities Chairman, and was Platform Page for both County and District. For six years she served the County Federation as Page, and has said she liked that job better than any of the others.

In 1956 — and she still can't understand why — she was talked into serving the East San Diego Women's Assembly again as president — and she held the office for two years. And for nearly ten years she served our club as junior advisor.

This may give you some idea of the vigor, vitality and stamina of our one hundred pound Clarice. But the story would not be complete without showing that she could and DID do something besides work. Once a year, in May, the County Federation held a meeting they called the May Festival and at one of these meetings Clarice brought down the house with a Gay Nineties STRIP-TEASE, if you please! She even hit the San Diego Union!

In 1960 Clarice lost John, so, quite typical of this sturdy lass, she disposed of her home and beloved grove and turned herself into a trailerite and a card-playing shark, as anyone playing with her finds out soon enough. She takes off for Hawaii or Tucson or Las Vegas as the mood hits her — she is always the youngest one in any group, and she has never lost her sense of humor. I don't suppose she has ever made an enemy — I know she has made loads of friends.

She never looks backward — each day she lives is, to her, the best day of her life. LONG MAY SHE WAVE!

Girls Bring Play

A special feature of the Lakeside Woman's Clubs birthday celebration on Monday, March 27th, was a skit produced and presented by the Alpine Women's Club.

The skit was written by Mrs. Beatrice La Force and the cast included Mmes. Gerald Peterson, Al Adams, Jerome Lipetzkey, James Sullivan and John Brooks.

RED CROSS GOES WHEN NEEDED

"The men and women of the American Red Cross go where they are needed — and they are needed in Vietnam."

No one is better qualified to speak on this subject than Gen. William C. W. Westmoreland, commander of the forces in Vietnam.

The American armed forces, fighting in mangrove swamps, bamboo thickets, jungles and mountains, deserve our finest support said the general, adding:

"I can say without reservation that these magnificent young Americans are as fine as any fighting men our nation has ever sent into battle. They are better trained, better equipped and have higher morale."

He pointed out that the vital role of the American Red Cross in supporting American forces in Vietnam and maintaining a communication link with the families at home.

"Here alongside our fighting men," he said, "more than 130 Red Cross field directors and assistant directors are on duty day and night — from the demilitarized zone in the north to Can Tho in the southern delta.

"Red Cross specialists serve at 13 military hospitals and on the hospital ship Repose.

"Another 95 Red Cross Clubmobile girls from all over America are serving here on one-year tours.

"In the United States — this is national Red Cross month. But here in Vietnam, every month is Red Cross month to the commanders and men who benefit from the many services the Red Cross provides.

"Frequently an early request from a commander setting up a base camp is: 'Send us a mobile club.'

"A chief nurse said recently, 'When we open our hospital, I want those Red Cross girls there.'

"Telegrams to servicemen arrive in Vietnam at the rate of about 400 a day. A similar number of messages arrive daily by air mail. Last December, more than 15,000 messages were handled by Red Cross personnel — a number equal to the strength of a division of soldiers.

"Speaking for all commanders here — commanders who are vitally concerned with the morale and welfare of their men — I commend the Red Cross to you for its fine, unselfish and dedicated work. The outstanding performance of the Red Cross in support of our armed forces in Vietnam merits the wholehearted support of the American public.

THE APRIL DISPLAY AT THE ALPINE LIBRARY

By JUSTIN GRUELLE

(twin brother of Johnny Gruelle who originated the Raggedy Ann saga in 1918 and who died in 1938)

Two floppy rag dolls with red hair, black shoe button eyes and a wide painted smile are among the best known characters upon our contemporary scene. Prized possession and playmate of millions of children they are also widely used as props by ad photographers and as a result they appear every month in many color ads for everything from soup to jet travel. They bear the name of Raggedy Ann and Andy and the names have become familiar to everyone. Yet very few know much about their creator, Johnny Gruelle.

He was born into an artistic Hoosier family, his father being Richard B. Gruelle a noted Indiana painter of landscapes and marines. During his boyhood, pencils were always within easy reach. As a result, one of the main modes of self entertainment of a winter's evening was to sit around the oil lamp and draw pictures. This was long before the advent of motion pictures, the radio and television. This early acquired skill in drawing led Johnny into the field of cartooning and at an early age he was doing political cartoons for the Indianapolis Sun, the Indianapolis Sentinel and finally the Indianapolis Star.

After these years in the Hoosier capital he moved to Cleveland and became cartoonist for the Cleveland Press and later the Newspaper Enterprise Association. While on that assignment an announcement of a prize contest for a new and better type of Sunday comic supplement came to his attention. It was being offered by the New York Herald Tribune and included a prize of $2,000 and the job of creating the future feature pages. He sent in two drawings of widely different types and shortly thereafter moved his family to Silvermile, Connecticut where his mother and father were then living.

A few months after Johnny, his wife and daughter Marcella were happily settled in the new home, word arrived that the Herald Tribune judges had settled on two drawings as first and second choices. Both were signed by Johnny Gruelle. The judges finally settled for the one based on the adventures of an elfin creature called Mr. Twee Deedle. This Sunday feature was quite different from the usual slap-stick comic section and soon attracted the attention of editors of children's books and magazines. As a result many commissions for illustrations came to the Silvermine Studio. During this period Johnny began to write as well as draw and the P. J. Volland Co. of Chicago published several books in which he was both author and illustrator. In 1916 tragedy visited the little family and Marcella died at the age of 14.

Shortly after this Johnny sat down one day and began to write a new story about the dolls that Marcella had loved and played with. There was floppy old rag doll that the author called Raggedy Ann, and Uncle Clem, a friendly police doll and all the others that sat around the now empty play room. This manuscript was published by Volland Co. on Sept. 10, 1918 and became the first of the long list of Raggedy Ann and Andy books that were to follow. The Raggedy Ann stories were an immediate success. The dolls soon followed commercially and from the start were in great demand.

The next ten years were happy and productive ones for Johnny, his wife Myrtle and the two sons, Worth and Richard who had been born since the death of Marcella. There were many books besides those about Raggedy Ann and her nursery friends: My Very Own Fairy Stories, Friendly Fairies, The Little Brown Bear, Eddie Elephant, Wooden Willie, The Cheery Scarecrow, The Magical Land of Noom, were published by the Volland Co. and Johnny Mouse and The Wishing Stick and Orphan Annie Story Book were published by Bobbs Merrill Co. of Indianapolis.

During this period Johnny also wrote and illustrated a monthly children's story for Good Housekeeping Magazine and the Women's World of Chicago, now no longer in circulation. A book of songs titled Raggedy Ann's Sunny Songs were published by the Miller Music Co. in 1930. Johnny supplied the lyrics for this and Will Wooden composed the music. Mr. Wooden was not only a composer of ability but was Secretary of the Treasury during President Roosevelt's first term.

A musical comedy built around the Raggedy Ann character, had a long run on Broadway during this period also, Fred Stone was the star. He also did a humorous full page drawing called Yap's Crossing, for Judge Magazine. There were many more examples of his creative imagination that appeared in print during these years. After spending many winters in Florida the little family finally bought a home in Miami Beach where Johnny passed away during a heart attack on June 10, 1938. He left his widow and the two sons who are artists also to carry the family tradition.

In 1965 Raggedy Ann celebrated her 50th birthday which was celebrated nation wide. At the request of Johnny's family parties were held at all the centers of the National Society for Crippled Children. Raggedy Anns and Andys were given the children along with ice cream and cake and all the trimmings.

Raggedy Ann has, over the years, become a national legend and a part of the national heritage. Loved by children all over the world and now by those who have become mothers and grandmothers, the Raggedys seem to be destined to go on forever. The first few dolls of 1918 have grown into a vast multitude that has long since passed the 20 million mark and the name Raggedy Ann has become a multi Million dollar property. It is my belief that no one would be more surprised at this transformation than would be the modest, kindly, fun-loving Johnny Gruelle, were he here in person.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Alpine is proud to have Johnny's brother, Justine Gruelle as one of its favorite citizens and one of its favorite and most talented artists. And this editor is proud to have Mr. and Mrs. Justin Gruelle as neighbors.)

Happy day! Circulator Reginald Lightfoot III has finally made the grade. Picked up a copy of the Town Crier El Cajon issue in that wonderful world of Kaelin's Valley Market. You know, those Kaelin folks have really got the grass roots by the tail. Happy country store — co-operative country store — they got a formula X to bring the clients in and keep 'em coming. With all the competition nowadays, that Valley Market keeps busy.

Go in there any holiday when everybody else is closed down and you'll find the place going full blast. It has that casual atmosphere and I believe that some of our politicians could get next to the Kaelin formula. They'd really begin to know what living was. These people get 'em young, rich, poor, deprived, happy, sour and turn 'em all out with a standard product and a standard treatment. More power to them. And let's keep those papers coming in there until everybody in the community recognizes our worth.

Injan Joe says the reason for the secret of the success in the Valley Market is that it crosses right across the path of the old Indian trail and everybody gravitates towards that location when they're going to and from El Cajon. Well, Injan Joe was noting that the old El Cajon Cemetery is beginning to look a little beat again. Wonders why we don't have more activity around there to set it up as sort of a memorial park for the El Cajon pioneers.

A lot of people don't realize we've got a cemetery in El Cajon located right next to one of the former hot spots in the community.

Effie Watters, the local humanitarian, says, "Well, the Easter Season is well over now. We've seen all the moral, spiritual and material functions of the season, the hats, the capes and even the monsters. Easter however is a fine religious holiday and she thinks it ought to be observed primarily for that."

Grandma Whitley, the old girl with the glint in her eye, whipped around the corner in her 1918 Ford convertible with the throttle wide open and nearly ran over Aunt Grace Good who was trying to get her money back from the local bus station which she thought was a bank and made a deposit buying a ticket that got her to the wrong place.

Aunt Grace Good is nearsighted and has a terrible time getting around the community. Anyway, Grandma Whitley said after she slowed her car down and picked up dear old Grace, that youth really wasn't as bad as we made it out in the paper. She says most of these people are in the minority. Most of them are pretty solid characters and most of them do a pretty good job of adjusting to what work they have to do.

Mamie Bell came in and looking at the script the way it was written, said she agreed with Grandma Whitley. She says however that you can't tell maturity by the age of 21 or any other age. She says some people who join the Navy are mature at 14 and other folks never get mature and at 26 they're just as backward as they were when they were eight. She says this whole business of maturity is arbitrary and that a lot of it is due to the fact that nowadays fewer and fewer young folks have parents to guide them through the hard stages of life. This makes some of them pretty dependent, and a lot of them pretty dependable and so we're hoping that these dependable ones stabilize our community.

Well, here we are at the end of another stint still looking for comments from the reading public. Glad to know that our column is distributed from one end of the city to the other and hoping that one of these days we again will work in a peaceful society.

Yours,
UNCLE PITT

Fire Commissioners Report

The Rio San Diego Municipal Water District has advised the Board that an extreme water pressure at one sight previously chosen for installation of a fire hydrant made it necessary to use especially constructed parts such as valve, hydrant, steel pipe, etc. In that these parts would be constructed for that particular water pressure, the cost of material would be about double the usual installation cost.

The County Counsel advised the Board, legislation enacted during 1966 directs that all California Fire Districts are in the future to be identified as Fire Protection Districts, therefore this district hereafter will be known as the Alpine Fire Protection District.

The District is required by the same legislation to follow an entirely new schedule in electing its Board members and is required to furnish the Registrar of Voters office an accurate map of the District indicating properties that are in the fire district.

To this end, owners of property adjacent to the District's boundaries will be contacted and informed whether their property is within the fire district and afforded fire protection by the Alpine Volunteer Fire Department.

SOME ARE STILL NOT SIGNED

A few San Diego County residents over 65 who have not yet signed for hospital insurance under medicare fall into two general groups — those who do not understand that hospital insurance is available even to those who have never worked under social security and those who delay filing because they think they must wait until they retire.

Arlyn B. Carry, Social Security District Manager in San Diego reports that even though nearly everyone reaching 65 before 1968 can have hospital insurance, some people who have not worked long enough under social security to receive cash benefits, and others who are still working, have not come in because they do not realize they are eligible.

Carr emphasized that even people who may not even have a social security card and may never have worked under the program are eligible and should come in and sign up.

Starting in 1968 those reaching 65 who are not eligible for cash social security benefits will need some credit for work under the law to qualify for hospital insurance. However, people born in 1902 or earlier do not require coverage under social security to qualify for hospital insurance. If they haven't already applied, Carr suggests they do so without delay.

The San Diego Social Security Office is located at 3211 5th Ave. Hours are from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. In addition, the office remains open Wednesday evenings until 7:30 p.m.
